

Council Refuses To Kill Proviso Ruling Meetings

Sixth Ward Alderman Loses Bid to Cause Revocation of 1938 Amendment on Resolutions

'No Gag Rule'
Alderman Connelly Replies to Statement 'This Is Not a Gag Rule'

Alderman Walter Donnaruma of the Sixth ward Tuesday evening unsuccessfully urged the common council to take action in repealing a provision of the rules governing the council meetings which had been unanimously adopted at the first council session he had attended as an alderman in January, 1938.

For years the council sessions had been cluttered up with the reading of numberless resolutions authorizing work on the streets, sewers, lights and water mains, over which the aldermen have no jurisdiction as the power was vested by the city charter in the various boards and departments.

Part of Rules
In order to speed up council meetings the aldermen at the organization meeting in January of 1938 adopted a section as part of the rules governing the meetings reading: "Resolutions or motions affecting the duties or powers delegated to any department of the city government by the charter shall not be in order."

In bringing the matter before the council last night Alderman Donnaruma called attention to the fact that last year he had introduced a resolution to repeal that section of the rules, and that the resolution had been referred to the laws and rules committee where it had been replying ever since.

Dubbing the section as "gag rules" the alderman from the Sixth ward urged that the laws and rules committee report the resolution out so that the council could vote on it. He said that he saw no reason why the council should not introduce resolutions concerning the city's welfare.

"Not a Gag Rule"
"This is not a gag rule" said Alderman James E. Connelly of the Ninth ward, chairman of the laws and rules committee. The alderman from the Ninth ward called attention to the fact that under the city charter the council had no control over the duties of the various boards and departments of the city.

"We have no power to tell city boards what action they shall take," observed Alderman Connelly. He said that the reason the committee had not reported the resolution out was because it would only be defeated on the floor of the council.

"Those of us who have been in the council more than 15 months," said Alderman Paul Zucca of the First ward, "realize the time it took to read the resolutions that were introduced. Every meeting night we wasted fully an hour listening to resolutions that were introduced and all that could be done was to refer them to the board having jurisdiction."

Wrong Impression
Alderman Zucca said that following the council meeting the long list of resolutions would be printed in the newspapers and it gave the public a wrong impression, for it led the public to believe that the resolutions would be carried out.

The alderman from the Sixth, however, was not convinced and expressed the opinion that the aldermen should have the right "to assert themselves". Arguments pro and con were suddenly interrupted, however, when a motion to adjourn was made and carried.

Albanian Heir

Queen Geraldine and Zog Rejoice Over Birth of Crown Prince Today

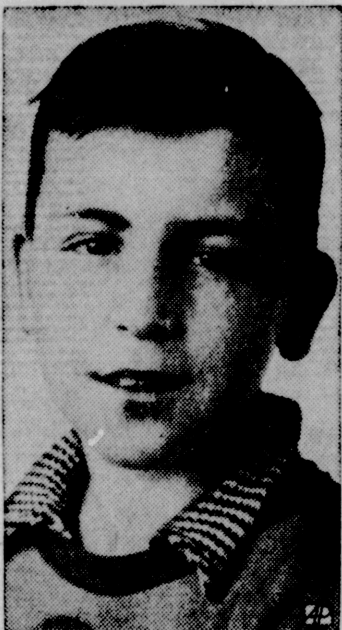

Tirana, Albania, April 5 (AP)—A son was born at 3:30 a. m. today to Queen Geraldine and King Zog I. it was announced today.

An artillery salute of 101 guns notified the people that a crown prince had been born. Elaborate celebrations were ordered throughout Albania.

The queen was described as in excellent health. Queen Geraldine, the former Countess Geraldine Apponyi of Hungary, was married to King Zog last April.

The queen's father was the late Count Julius Nagy-Apponyi and her mother, the former countess, is Mrs. Gladys Stewart Girault, an American now living in southern France.

Zucca Hands Out Aldermanic Rebuff

Donnarumma, 6th Ward, Gives 1st Ward Proposal; Gets Courtesy 'Lesson'

The question of aldermanic courtesy was raised Tuesday evening at the Common Council meeting when Alderman Walter Donnarumma of the Sixth ward introduced a resolution that 80 feet on the north side of John street, between Fair and Wall streets, in the First ward, be set aside for a public hack stand.

The resolution was seconded by Alderman Elmor Nathan of the Eighth ward.

Not Exactly Courtesy
In opposing the resolution Alderman Paul Zucca of the First ward expressed the opinion that it was not exactly aldermanic courtesy on the part of the alderman from the Sixth ward, and he did not believe that Alderman Donnarumma would take kindly to it, if another alderman attempted to introduce a resolution pertaining to the Sixth ward.

"I do not think it right to introduce such a resolution," said Alderman Zucca, "as the council has delegated to the chief of police the power to designate taxi stands in the city." He said the matter had been under consideration for some time. It had also been discussed with the merchants.

'No Legal Right'
"The council has no legal right to designate its powers to the chief of police," said Alderman Nathan.

Alderman Zucca called Alderman Nathan's attention to the fact that the council some years ago had adopted an ordinance delegating the power to the police chief.

Alderman Nathan said that Thursday night when the uptown business men were holding their window display that the police department had ordered Wall street kept clear of automobiles and no car was allowed to park in the section kept free. This he did not believe was legal.

Further discussion was halted when Alderman-at-large John J. Schwenk, the presiding officer, referred the matter to the committee.

Four New Defendants Face Orange Probe Arraignment

Newburgh, N. Y., April 5 (AP)—Four new defendants faced arraignment today on indictments returned in a special grand jury investigation of alleged official corruption in Newburgh and Orange county.

The quartet is headed by Fred P. Earl, supervisor of the town of Blooming Grove, who is charged in two indictments with violation of the penal code in relation to fraudulent payment of bills.

Others indicted on the same charge are J. Egbert Seaman, former road superintendent; Percy H. Gerow, justice of the peace, and Alexander H. Courter, former justice of the peace and former welfare officer, all of the same township.

Previously the grand jury returned indictments against John L. Sloan, superintendent of the combined Newburgh city and town welfare district, and three others. Sloan is at liberty on $2,500 bail.

Arraigned with Sloan yesterday were Kenneth Jones, welfare district clerk; Joseph Friedman, a grocer, and Morris Shafer, fruit dealer. Jones is at liberty on $1,000 bail, the other two on $500. All four pleaded innocent.

Gillespie Gets 5 to 10 Years in Dannemora

Second Offender Who Pleads Guilty to Grand Larceny Is Sentenced This Morning; Mild Term Is Asked for William Hasbrouck—Banks Will Go to Napanoch

Myron Gillespie of Kingston was sentenced to a term of 5 to 10 years at hard labor in Clinton State Prison at Dannemora, this morning in county court, on his plea of guilty to grand larceny. He pleaded as a second offender.

His companion, William Hasbrouck, of New Paltz, who was jointly indicted with Gillespie, was sentenced to Elmira State Reformatory, but execution of sentence was suspended during good behavior because of his good prior record and the fact that he apparently had been led into the trouble by his companion. District Attorney Murray asked that leniency be extended.

Judge Traver directed that Hasbrouck be held by the sheriff until Thursday when he is to report to Probation Officer Service for instructions on probation.

Banks to Napanoch
Harry Banks, pleading guilty to sodomy, was sent to Napanoch Institution under an information filed with the court following a mental examination. Banks resided on Boulder avenue, Kingston. Papers committing him to Napanoch will be signed.

Samuel Plean of Brooklyn, who was charged with attempting to remove machinery from a downtown building, was given three months in jail. He pleaded guilty to unlawful entry. With another man, Plean was sent to Kingston by a Brooklyn man to get certain machinery from a downtown factory. He attempted to carry out his instructions but was caught in the act and charged with burglary and unlawful entry.

Year for Riley
James Riley of Palisade, N. J., was given a year in jail on his plea of guilty to burglary, third degree. Riley was arrested by State Troopers near Lake Katrine where he allegedly broke into several camps and took food. He was employed several years at Palisade Park as watchman, and his employer sent a letter requesting leniency and telling of his prior good record. On this recommendation Judge Traver pronounced a lighter sentence than usual in similar cases.

George Fitzgerald, Kingston, charged with possession of policy slips, changed a former not guilty plea to one of guilty, and was fined $100 and given a three months jail sentence which was suspended during good behavior. Judge Joseph M. Fowler appears for Fitzgerald. He told the court that when arrested Fitzgerald had "come clean" and now assured the court he would keep out of the policy racket in future.

In sentencing the defendant Judge Traver told him that one of the conditions of the suspended jail sentence was good behavior which means no gambling violations or any other.

Warm Springs, Ga., April 5 (AP)—Secretary of Commerce Harry L. Hopkins' announcement here that he intended shortly to establish a voting residence in his boyhood home of Grinnell, Iowa, had Warm Springs flooded today with inquiries from the politically-minded in Washington and elsewhere.

Railmen Inspect Mountain Branch

Report That Kaaterskill Line Might Not Run Is Not Confirmed

A tour of inspection of the Catskill Mountain Branch, formerly the Ulster and Delaware Railroad, was made Tuesday by President F. E. Williamson, Vice President Raymond Starbuck and Assistant General Freight Agent S. E. McGrath of the New York Central system.

The officials arrived in Kingston in the special car of President Williamson which was attached to No. 9, arriving in Kingston at 6:40 a. m. The car was immediately switched over to the mountain branch and ran special over the entire length of the line to Oneonta. In charge of the special was Conductor H. T. Low of this city and Engineer Salton.

No Announcement
While no announcement was made as to the purpose of the inspection trip it is believed that the inspection was routine with the purpose of ascertaining the facilities and needs on the mountain branch for taking care of the hauling of freight and materials which may be required for the construction of the big water works job which New York city is contemplating on the upper Delaware river. The Catskill branch connects with the Delaware and Northern which runs directly through the locality where the huge reservoir will be built.

The inspection party made a tour of the entire line from Kingston to Oneonta, returning to Kingston in the afternoon where the private car was attached to No. 2 which left Kingston at 4:47 p. m. for Weehawken. There were rumors that one purpose of the trip was for an inspection of the Kaaterskill branch from Phoenicia to Greene county for the purpose of determining whether that branch should be abandoned. This report was not confirmed and it was stated by railroad men that the inspection was routine and was in the interest of the prospective water works business.

British Try to Stop Statement By Admiralty; Hitler Mobilizes Youth; Axis Leads in Planes

Germany and Italy Possess Forces Able to Strike Immediately With Great Power

Official Data
Distribution of Foreign Troops Shown in Latest Available Figures

Washington, April 5 (AP)—Europe's new "stop Hitler" lineup unites imposing land and sea forces but in the air, American experts said today, the most authoritative figures give the Rome-Berlin axis superiority.

Further, in the number of troops actually under arms, Germany and Italy together are shown by official reports to possess greater immediate striking power.

It is in trained reserves, naval might, and resources for a long struggle that an alliance of Great Britain, France and Poland appears to some experts to be better equipped—excluding the possibility of aid from Soviet Russia, Rumania or other nations.

Latest Data
Latest available official data—subject to revision almost daily because of sudden moves on the European military checkerboard—give this picture of the relative strength in land forces:

Great Britain, exclusive of Dominions—208,500 men under arms, 573,500 including trained reserves. France—725,000 active, 6,025,000 including reserves.

Poland—266,000 active, 1,713,000, including reserves. Germany—930,000 active, 4,080,000 including reserves. Italy—917,000 active, 7,412,000 including reserves.

The break-up of Czechoslovakia disbanded a trained army of 205,000, and disarmed most of an additional reserve force of 1,685,000. They represented a loss of some 35 well-equipped divisions to a "stop Hitler" combination, along with the famous Skoda munitions plant.

50,000 in Hungary
Hungary, a possible Rome-Berlin ally, is credited with 50,000 men under arms, and an additional 650,000 reserves. The land forces of other powers include:

Soviet Russia—1,500,000 active army, possibly 18,000,000 trained reserves. Rumania—212,000 active; 1,828,000 including reserves.

Japan—4,500,000 or more under arms pressing the conflict with China and guarding the Siberian border, plus 4,748,000 reserves.

By comparison, the United States has some 185,000 men in its active army, and reserve forces of about 315,000, including the National Guard.

President Roosevelt's $552,000,000 arms expansion program will add about 40,000 men to the regular army, mostly in the air corps.

Warship Tonnage
At sea, Great Britain and France have warship tonnage of 2,842,000, compared with 1,180,000 for Germany and Italy.

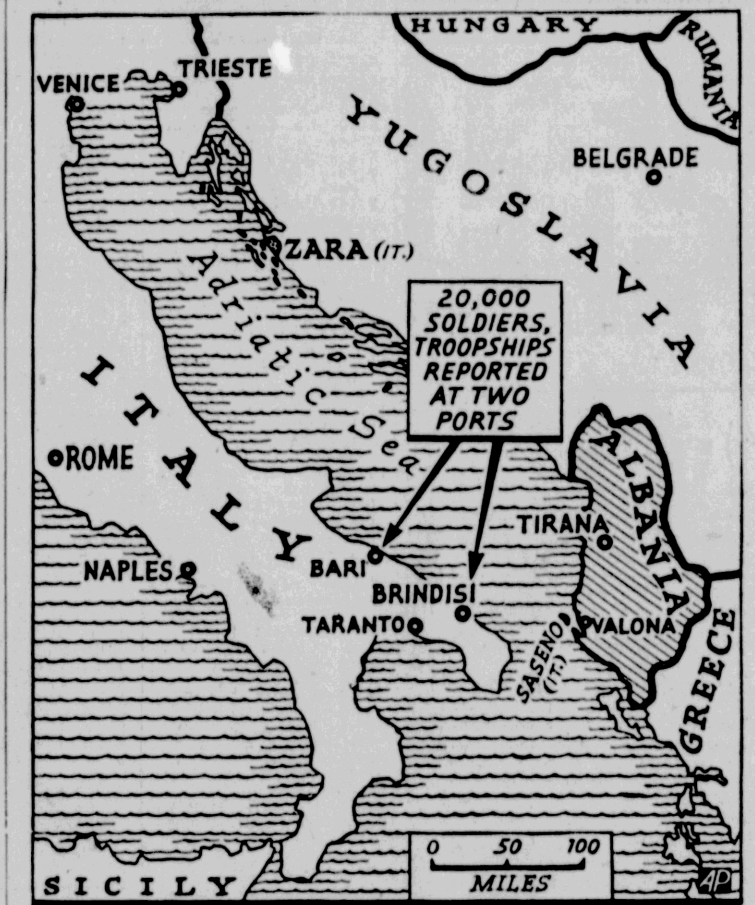

The United States Navy's latest revised comparative figures credit it with 898,691 warship tonnage. The American Navy's total is 1,407,945, including vessels overage and out of commission.

By one authoritative estimate, Germany and Italy could put at least 12,500 warplanes in the air immediately, compared to 7,700 British and French modern aircraft. Italy-German productive capacity is rated higher also, though Britain has been gearing her plane output to greater speeds.

Iowa, called at the White House. It also was recalled that in the 1938 primary campaign, featured by the President's famous "purge" effort, Hopkins announced that he was still a voter in Iowa he would cast his ballot for Rep. Otha D. Wearin for the Democratic senatorial nomination. But Senator Guy M. Gillette, the incumbent, squeezed through in the November elections.

It has been generally accepted, in Washington that Hopkins is one of the President's most intimate friends and political advisers. He first became associated with the executive when the latter was governor of New York and came to the national capital early in the administration as WPA administrator. He was elevated to the cabinet at the beginning of the year when Daniel C. Roper resigned as secretary of commerce.

Europe's New Trouble Spot?

While European diplomatic circles heard reports of Italian troop concentrations across the Adriatic from the Balkan state of Albania, an Italian government radio station announced that Italy had no intention of interfering in Albania's affairs, but merely was strengthening its defensive alliance with its neighbor.

Kelly Is Re-Elected By Big Margin in Chicago Campaign

Veteran Democratic Chief Receives 820,517 Votes; Results Are Studied as 1940 Index

Chicago, April 5 (AP)—Mayor Edward J. Kelly, re-elected by a decisive margin, went back to his city hall desk today for another four-year term while party chiefs studied the election results for a tip on the coming presidential contest.

The veteran Democratic leader defeated his youthful Republican opponent, Dwight H. Green, by approximately 180,000 votes. Complete but unofficial returns gave Kelly 820,517, Green 637,107, and Arthur P. Reilly, Third Party candidate, 4,921.

Democratic and Republican leaders alike hailed the results with satisfaction.

Party Dominance
The Democrats cited the mayor's record breaking vote as indicative of the party's continued dominance in Illinois. Harry B. Hershey, chairman of the Democratic state committee, had quoted National Chairman James A. Farley as saying: "As Illinois goes, so will the nation in 1940."

The Republicans asserted the Republican vote—largest polled in Chicago in a decade—was a sure sign of a G. O. P. victory in Illinois next year, when presidential nominees battle for the rich prize of 29 electoral votes.

To a city accustomed to swash-buckling, name-calling campaigns topped off with extensive violence at the polls, the past one was a tame affair.

Record Vote
But the contest nevertheless brought out a record smashing vote of 1,478,637 for a city election.

Green's showing, the most striking in view of his inexperience as a candidate, brought jubilant predictions from party leaders. He was accorded little chance of making an impressive showing after Republicans polled only 275,000 votes in the February primary against 921,000 Democratic votes.

Green said the election figures "assures victory in the state of Illinois for the Republican party in 1940." The Democrats, he said, polled 56 per cent of the vote despite "the regimentation of payrollers and the 'most lavish campaign fund in history.'"

Edward F. Moore, chairman of the Republican city general committee, said the Republican vote not only "definitely insures" a G. O. P. victory in Illinois in 1940 but also "dooms the New Deal nationally."

C. B. Goodspeed, treasurer of the Republican national committee, likewise predicted a Republican victory in Illinois next year and asserted the election "proves that the great cities with tremendous Democratic machines are not invulnerable."

Miss June Crandall Chosen as May Queen

The final balloting for Kingston High School's May Queen took place yesterday afternoon in a special senior assembly. At that time Miss June Crandall out-voted Miss Agnes Cafaro for the honored point. Miss Crandall polled 106 votes while her opponent garnered 69. By this result Miss Cafaro will be maid of honor at the usual ceremonies.

Theron Culver, vice principal, also announced at the meeting that a vote for six May Queen attendants will be taken soon.

Five Boys Held In Local Thefts

Investigation Brings About Arrests for Entering Broadway Store

With the arrest of five more boys, all under 16 years of age, Tuesday afternoon the Kingston police department believes that the series of some 25 minor burglaries committed over a six-months' period in the city, has been solved. The boys were held for arraignment in children's court before Judge Frederick G. Traver.

On March 28, the police arrested three other boys, all under 16 years of age, who confessed to having committed a series of 12 minor burglaries in the city. These cases were disposed of at that time in children's court.

Since then Officer Wesley Cramer has been working in an attempt to solve the remaining burglaries and with the roundup of the five young boys yesterday it is believed that his efforts were successful.

The boys were arrested on a specific charge of entering the Abram Bahl store at 92 Broadway, on two occasions.

According to the police the boys confessed to the charge, and also admitted they committed the other series of minor burglaries in the city. In none of the series of 25 burglaries during the past six months was any considerable amount in money obtained. The largest amount, according to the police, was in the high school burglary, when the thieves obtained $15.

Civilized Madhouse

France Re-Elects Le Brun as President for Second Seven-Year Term and Breaks Tradition

Might Resign
Stanhope Might Quit His Post as Result of Break, Source Says

(By The Associated Press)
Prime Minister Chamberlain assumed responsibility today for the attempted suppression of a sensational statement that British anti-aircraft guns were manned "to be ready for anything"; France re-elected her president, and Belgium set about forming a national union government.

In Germany, Chancellor Hitler decreed that all boys and girls between 10 and 18 must join the Hitler youth organization. Nazi Youth Leader Baldur von Schirach now controls much of German youths' "bodily, spiritual and moral instruction."

Albert LeBrun, 67, was re-elected president of France for a second seven-year term by the national assembly. He received 506 of the 910 votes cast. The re-election breaks with a half-century tradition of one-term presidents, and followed Premier Daladier's appeal for a demonstration of national unity.

Pierlot Is Picked
King Leopold of Belgium asked Hubert Pierlot, of the Catholic Party, to form a national union cabinet to replace Pierlot's government that resigned February 27 because Socialists refused to collaborate.

Chamberlain told the House of Commons that he directed newspapers to suppress or discount the "man the guns" speech by Earl Stanhope, first lord of the admiralty, because it gave an incorrect impression.

Lord Stanhope told of the navy's anti-aircraft preparations in a speech aboard the aircraft carrier Ark Royal at Portsmouth last night. Prime Minister Chamberlain's office issued a denial. The admiralty asked the press to suppress the speech and declared that the fleet always was ready and "no extra precautions have been taken tonight (Tuesday)."

Some Publish Speech
Some British papers published the speech in early editions and then withdrew it with a statement that the earl made an "amazing" declaration but noting the admiralty request. Others withdrew it from one edition but later re-instated it. Some carried nothing about it.

The official secrets act authorizes suppression of news considered adverse to national safety. Chamberlain reported to have demanded an immediate explanation from Lord Stanhope.

The cabinet discussed the affair this morning. Political circles wondered whether Stanhope might resign.

Returns to Golf

Hines Grins as Usual But He's Pale and Thin After 12 Days in Tombs

New York, April 5 (AP)—James J. (Jimmy) Hines, who has taken his exercise for the past 12 days in the yard of gloomy Tombs prison, returned to his golf game today.

Under a $35,000 bond, he was released yesterday during his appeal from a 4-to-8-year sentence for selling political protection to Dutch Schultz's multi-million-dollar policy racket.

Grimacing as usual but seeming pale and thin, Hines left the Tombs, still holding the title, at least, of Tammany leader of the 11th Assembly District.

While his attorney, Martin W. Littleton, prepared an appeal to the appellate division of Supreme Court, an appeal which will not be argued until October, Hines announced that he was going into a seclusion with his family.

Hopkins Stirs Presidential Talk: He Will Establish His Voting Residence in Iowa

Warm Springs, Ga., April 5 (AP)—Secretary of Commerce Harry L. Hopkins' announcement here that he intended shortly to establish a voting residence in his boyhood home of Grinnell, Iowa, had Warm Springs flooded today with inquiries from the politically-minded in Washington and elsewhere.

As the fact that Hopkins is here as a house guest of President Roosevelt and has been mentioned frequently as the Chief Executive's first choice for the Democratic presidential nomination in 1940 focused unusual attention on the commerce secretary's decision to move from New York state to Iowa.

Hopkins denied flatly that politics had any bearing on the situation. He said he felt it his duty to his motherless 7-year-old daughter, Diane, to afford her a permanent home and could think of none better than the state of his birth.

This explanation failed to satisfy those who queried today, but he kept himself unavailable temporarily after the original confirmation.

The cabinet officer did deny vigorously, however, recent rumors he was about to resign his commerce post because of ill health. He came south with the President to recuperate from an attack of intestinal influenza, but scoffed at the idea he had suffered a recurrence of stomach ulcers.

In speculating on the possible political motive in the change in residence, observers recalled that shortly before Mr. Roosevelt came to Warm Springs for his Easter holiday, Edward Birmingham, Democratic state chairman for Iowa, called at the White House. It also was recalled that in the 1938 primary campaign, featured by the President's famous "purge" effort, Hopkins announced that he would still vote in Iowa.

Otha D. Wearin for the Democratic senatorial nomination. But Senator Guy M. Gillette, the incumbent, squeezed through in the November elections.

It has been generally accepted, in Washington that Hopkins is one of the President's most intimate friends and political advisers. He first became associated with the executive when the latter was governor of New York and came to the national capital early in the administration as WPA administrator. He was elevated to the cabinet at the beginning of the year when Daniel C. Roper resigned as secretary of commerce.

British Try to Stop Statement By Admiralty; Hitler Mobilizes Youth; Axis Leads in Planes

Official Data

Distribution of Foreign Troops Shown in Latest Available Figures

Washington, April 5 (AP)—Europe's new "stop Hitler" lineup unites imposing land and sea forces but in the air, American experts said today, the most authoritative figures give the Rome-Berlin axis superiority.

Further, in the number of troops actually under arms, Germany and Italy together are shown by official reports to possess greater immediate striking power.

It is in trained reserves, naval might, and resources for a long struggle that an alliance of Great Britain, France and Poland appears to some experts to be better equipped—excluding the possibility of aid from Soviet Russia, Rumania or other nations.

Latest Data

Latest available official data—subject to revision almost daily because of sudden moves on the European military checkboard—give this picture of the relative strength in land forces:

Great Britain, exclusive of Dominions—208,500 men under arms, 573,500 including trained reserves.

France—725,000 active, 6,025,000 including reserves.

Poland—266,000 active, 1,713,000 including reserves.

Germany—390,000 active, 4,080,000 including reserves.

Italy—917,000 active, 7,412,000 including reserves.

The break-up of Czechoslovakia disbanded a trained army of 205,000, and disbanded most of an additional reserve force of 1,685,000. They represented a loss of some 35 well-equipped divisions to a "stop Hitler" combination, along with the famous Skoda munitions plant.

50,000 in Hungary

Hungary, a possible Rome-Berlin ally, is credited with 50,000 men under arms, and an additional 650,000 reserves.

The land forces of other powers include:

Soviet Russia—1,500,000 active army, possibly 18,000,000 trained reserves.

Rumania—212,000 active; 1,828,000 including reserves.

Japan—1,500,000 or more under arms pressing the conflict with China and guarding the Siberian border, plus 4,748,000 reserves.

By comparison, the United States has some 185,000 men in its active army, and reserve forces of about 315,000, including the National Guard.

President Roosevelt's $552,000,000 arms-expansion program will add about 40,000 men to the regular army, mostly in the air corps.

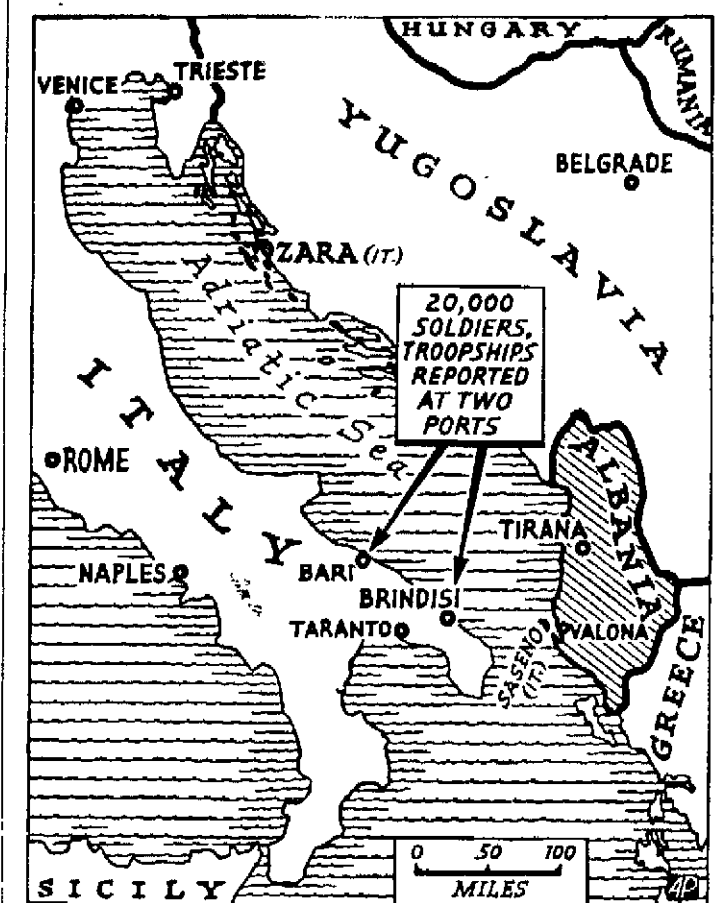

Warship Tonnage

At sea, Great Britain and France have warship tonnage of 2,842,000 compared with 1,180,000 for Germany and Italy.

The United States Navy's latest revised comparative figures credit Japan with 998,691 warship tonnage. The American Navy's total is 1,407,945, including vessels over age and out of commission.

By one authoritative estimate, Germany and Italy could put at least 12,500 warplanes into the air immediately, compared to 7,700 British and French modern aircraft. Italo-German productive capacity is rated higher also, though Britain has been gearing her plane output to greater speeds.

Europe's New Trouble Spot?

Kelly Is Re-Elected By Big Margin in Chicago Campaign

Veteran Democratic Chief Receives 820,517 Votes; Results Are Studied as 1940 Index

Chicago, April 5 (AP)—Mayor Edward J. Kelly, re-elected by a decisive margin, went back to his city hall desk today for another four-year term while party chiefs studied the election results for a tip on the coming presidential contest.

The veteran Democratic leader defeated his youthful Republican opponent, Dwight H. Green, by approximately 180,000 votes.

Complete but unofficial returns gave Kelly 820,517, Green 637,107, and Arthur P. Reilly, Third Party candidate, 4,921.

Party Dominance

The Democrats cited the mayor's record breaking vote as indication of the party's continued dominance in Illinois.

Hershey, chairman of the Democratic state committee, had quoted National Chairman James A. Farley as saying: "As Illinois goes, so will the nation in 1940."

The Republicans asserted the Republican vote—largest polled in Chicago in a decade—was a sure sign of a G. O. P. victory in Illinois next year when presidential nominees battle for the rich prize of 29 electoral votes.

To a city accustomed to swash-buckling, name-calling campaigns topped off with extensive violence at the polls, the past one was a tame affair.

Record Vote

But the contest nevertheless brought out a record smashing vote of 1,478,637 for a city election.

Green's showing, the more striking in view of his inexperience as a candidate, brought jubilant predictions from party leaders. He was accorded little chance of making an impressive showing after Republicans polled only 275,000 votes in the February primary against 921,000 Democratic votes.

Green said the election figures "assures victory in the state of Illinois for the Republican party in 1940." The Democrats, he said, polled 56 per cent of the vote despite "the regimentation of pay-rollers" and the "most lavish campaign fund in history."

Edward F. Moore, chairman of the Republican city general committee, said the Republican vote not only "definitely insures" a G. O. P. victory in Illinois in 1940 but also "dooms the New Deal nationally."

C. E. Goodspeed, treasurer of the Republican national committee, likewise predicted a Republican victory in Illinois next year and asserted the election "proves that the great cities with tremendous Democratic machines are not invulnerable."

Miss June Crandall Chosen as May Queen

The final balloting for Kingston High School's May Queen took place yesterday afternoon in a special senior assembly. At that time Miss June Crandall out-voted Miss Agnes Cafaro for the honored point. Miss Crandall polled 106 votes while her opponent garnered 69. By this result Miss Cafaro will be maid of honor at the usual ceremonies.

Theron Culver, vice principal, also announced at the meeting that a vote for six May Queen attendants will be taken soon.

Five Boys Held In Local Thefts

Investigation Brings About Arrests for Entering Broadway Store

With the arrest of five more boys, all under 16 years of age, Tuesday afternoon the Kingston police department believes that the series of some 25 minor burglaries committed over a six-months' period in the city, has been solved. The boys were held for arraignment in children's court before Judge Frederick G. Traver.

On March 28, the police arrested three other boys, all under 16 years of age, who confessed to having committed a series of 12 minor burglaries in the city. These cases were disposed of at that time in children's court.

Since then Officer Wesley Cramer has been working in an attempt to solve the remaining burglaries and with the roundup of the five young boys yesterday it is believed that his efforts were successful.

The boys were arrested on a specific charge of entering the Abram Bahl store at 92 Broadway, on two occasions.

According to the police the boys confessed to the charge, and also admitted they committed the other series of minor burglaries in the city.

In none of the series of 25 burglaries during the past six months was any considerable amount in money obtained. The largest amount, according to the police, was in the high school burglary, when the thieves obtained $15.

Civilized Madhouse

San Francisco, April 5 (AP)—We are living in a "civilized madhouse" which is sending as many people to mental institutions as it is graduating from college, says Dr. Jay B. Nash of New York University. Men and women are "going to pieces" in increasing numbers, he asserted, because their bodies have been cataputted 1,000,000 years ahead of their nervous systems and because of the social and economic uncertainties of the modern age.

Might Resign

Stanhope Might Quit His Post as Result of Break, Source Says

(By The Associated Press)

Prime Minister Chamberlain assumed responsibility today for the attempted suppression of a sensational statement that British anti-aircraft guns were manned "to be ready for anything." France re-elected her president, and Belgium set about forming a national union government.

In Germany, Chancellor Hitler decreed that all boys and girls between 10 and 18 must join the Hitler youth organization. Nazi Youth Leader Baldur von Schirach now controls much of German youths' "bodily, spiritual and moral instruction."

Albert LeBrun, 67, was re-elected president of France for a second seven-year term by the national assembly. He received 506 of the 910 votes cast. The re-election breaks with a half-century tradition of one-term presidents, and followed Premier Daladier's appeal for a demonstration of national unity.

Pierlot Is Picked
King Leopold of Belgium asked Hubert Pierlot, of the Catholic Party, to form a national union cabinet, to replace Pierlot's government that resigned February 27 because Socialists refused to collaborate.

Chamberlain told the House of Commons that he directed newspapers to suppress or discount the "man the guns" speech by Earl Stanhope, first lord of the admiralty, because it gave an incorrect impression.

Lord Stanhope told of the navy's anti-aircraft preparations in a speech aboard the aircraft carrier Ark Royal at Portsmouth last night.

Prime Minister Chamberlain's office issued a denial. The admiralty asked the press to suppress the speech and declared that the fleet always was ready and "no extra precautions have been taken tonight (Tuesday)."

Some Publish Speech

Some British papers published the speech in early editions and then withdrew it with a statement that the earl made an "amazing" declaration but noting the admiralty request. Others withdrew it from one edition but later reinstated it. Some carried nothing about it.

The official secrets act authorizes suppression of news considered adverse to national safety.

Chamberlain reported to have demanded an immediate explanation from Lord Stanhope.

Berlin: 'Martians Are Coming'
First reaction from Berlin was in the newspaper Zeitung Am Mittag which asked if London thought "that the Martians are marching on England." It referred to the American radio broadcast last fall.

Col. Joseph Beck, the Polish foreign minister, resumed his talks with the British foreign ministry today.

For her part of the "stop Hitler bloc," France was reported to have given new assurances to Rumania. It was understood Turkey agreed to keep the Dardanelles

Returns to Golf

Hines Grins as Usual but He's Pale and Thin After 12 Days in Tombs

New York, April 5 (AP)—James J. (Jimmy) Hines, who has taken his exercise for the past 12 days in the yard of gloomy Tombs prison, returned to his golf game today.

Under a $35,000 bond, he was released yesterday during his appeal from a 4-to-8-year sentence for selling political protection to Dutch Schultz's multi-million-dollar policy racket.

Griming as usual but seeming pale and thin, Hines left the Tombs, still holding the title, at least, of Tammany leader of the 11th Assembly District.

While his attorney, Martin W. Littleton, prepared an appeal to the appellate division of Supreme Court, an appeal which will not be argued until October, Hines announced that he was going into a seclusion with his family.

Aldermen Adopt Audit Proposal

Mills and Ward, New York, Will Audit City Books Again This Year

For a quarter of a century the firm of Mills & Ward, public accountants of New York city, has been annually engaged in auditing the city's books, and Tuesday evening by a vote of 8 to 4 the Common Council entered into an agreement to have them again audit the books this year for the sum of $1,800.

A resolution to that effect was introduced at the council meeting, and Alderman Nathan of the Eighth ward in speaking on the resolution, which he opposed, believed that the contract should be awarded to some local accountant.

Alderman Tremper of the Second ward in reply to Alderman Nathan said that the same question had been raised several years ago and at that time the city administration, as well as many former administrations, were of the opinion that the city's books should be audited by an out of town concern.

The resolution was adopted with the four Democratic aldermen, Messrs. Donnorumma, Nathan, Wolff and Ryan, voting in the negative.

The laws and rules committee submitted a report on the petition of the Shell Oil Corporation to enlarge its present drive-in gas station at Wurts and McEntee streets. A public hearing had been held on the petition on March 30, at which time no one appeared in opposition to granting the petition.

The Shell Corp. plans to replace the present gas station with a more modern station costing $7,500.

The laws and rules committee recommended that the petition be granted. The report was adopted unanimously.

An ordinance was introduced carrying out the provisions of the petition and it was unanimously approved and adopted.

Bus Petition Is Given To Aldermanic Committee

A petition from the Clipper Lines, Inc., for permission to operate a bus line through the city of Kingston was read at the meeting of the common council Tuesday evening and referred to the railroad and bus committee.

The petition stated that the principal office of the company was located at East Durham in Greene county and that the company desired to operate a bus line between Cherry Valley and New York city.

In passing through Kingston the bus line wanted to operate over the East Chester street by-pass, Broadway to McEntee street, to Wurts street and over the Rondout Creek Bridge.

No passengers would be received or discharged within the city.

COUGHS DUE TO COLDS

To quickly relieve distress—rub soothing, warming Musterole on your chest, throat and back.

Musterole is NOT "just a salve." It's a "counter-irritant" containing good old-fashioned remedies for distress of colds—oil of mustard, menthol, camphor and other helpful ingredients.

That's why it gets such fine results—better than the old-fashioned mustard plaster. Musterole penetrates the surface skin, stimulates, warms and soothes and quickly helps to relieve local congestion and pain. Used by millions for 30 years. Recommended by many doctors and nurses. In 8 strengths: Regular, Children's (Mild) and Extra Strong, 40%.

A recent survey disclosed 11,159 aircraft and 22,983 pilots in this country. At the same time there were 221 gliders and 172 glider pilots.

Senate Confirms Douglas, 62 to 4

Leon Henderson Is Listed as Possible SEC Head

Washington, April 5 (AP)—Senate confirmation of William O. Douglas as a supreme court justice brought renewed predictions from some Senators today that Leon Henderson, New Deal economist, would get his place as chairman of the securities commission.

Douglas was confirmed late yesterday, 62 to 4. Senators Frazier and Nye of North Dakota, Lodge of Massachusetts and Reed of Kansas, all Republicans, voted in opposition.

Douglas will take his place on the bench beside three other appointments of President Roosevelt—Justices Black, Reed and Frankfurter. He declined to comment on his confirmation or to say when he will take the oath of office, but he cannot sit with the court until April 17, when it will reconvene after a spring recess.

Before the Senate vote on Douglas, Frazier made a detailed criticism of his activities. The Senator contended that Douglas had shown friendship for the New York stock exchange until his name was mentioned for the supreme court, after which he had spoken out against the exchange.

Along with Douglas, the Senate yesterday confirmed Mr. Roosevelt's nomination of Wiley B. Rutledge, dean of the University of Iowa Law School, to be a justice of the federal court of appeals in the District of Columbia.

Another presidential nomination—that of Thomas R. Amle of Wisconsin, to be a member of the interstate commerce commission—remained stuck in a Senate subcommittee.

Amle was charged during committee hearings with having Communist leanings. This he flatly denied.

National Hospital Day

The eighteenth anniversary of National Hospital Day, Friday, May 12, marks many significant advances in the hospital field and its relation to the community. It marks also the birth date in 1820 of Florence Nightingale, founder of modern nursing, who did much to improve the standards of hospital care in her time.

Blossom Queen Plans Advance

April 28 Named as Date
 When Ulster's Fair One
 Will Be Selected

Plans are progressing rapidly for the preliminary activities in connection with the selection of an Apple Blossom Queen from among the high school girls of Ulster county, as well as for the ceremonies which will mark her coronation at Forsyth Park on May 6, it was announced today.

Mrs. Kenneth H. LeFever, chairman of the committee on selection of the queen and the coronation, announced this morning that April 28 had been set as the date for the selection of the queen, who will be chosen from a list of contestants from the various high schools of the county.
 Preliminary contests will be held in the schools and the winners of those contests will appear in the final, to be held in the auditorium of the New Paltz Normal School.

Will Decorate Stage
 John Burgevin has offered to decorate the stage at the New Paltz Normal for the occasion and Albert E. Milliken, another member of the committee, is now selecting judges who will make the final award. Mr. Milliken is endeavoring to secure the presence of one or two judges from New York city.

After the judges have made their choice and selected the queen, they will then select two more of the contestants to act as maids of honor at the coronation, while the others will act as ladies in waiting. In addition to these some two dozen or so boys and girls will be selected from the 4-H Clubs in the county to participate in the coronation ceremonies. The boys will serve as courtiers and pages and the girls will be maids in waiting.

Will Aid Contestants
 Other arrangements in connection with the coronation, to be held at New Paltz include the appointment of Mrs. N. LeVan Haver to assist the contestants in preparing for their appearance before the board of judges, and the naming of Mrs. Roger H.
 Loughran to give the girls some pointers on how to make a proper "stage entry" and other details concerned with that part of the evening's activity.

A change has been made in the rules this year in that each contestant will be permitted to select and wear an evening gown of her own choice, one which she considered will allow her to make the best possible impression. For the coronation ceremonies at the park, however, gowns will be alike and will be selected and furnished by the committee of which Mrs. LeFever is chairman.

Water Report Filed
 The report of Roder and Roder, certified public accountants, who audited the books of the water department, was filed together with an explanatory letter from William H. Van Eiten, president of the water board.

Mr. Van Eiten called attention to the fact that the revenue from water rates has been sufficient to cover the necessary operating expenses of the department and to redeem the bonds that matured during the past year.
 The board has retired $40,000 in bonds, and the bonded debt on behalf of the water department at the present time has been amortized to $840,000.

N. Spinnewer Joins Kolts Electric Force

Norman Spinnewer, who for some years has been employed in the business office of the Canfield Supply Company on the Strand, has accepted a position with the Kolts Electric Supply Company of central Broadway.

Mr. Spinnewer comes to the Kolts Company at the time that the organization is celebrating its third anniversary. It was in April, three years ago, that Harvey S. Kolts resigned a responsible position with the Canfield Company to launch into business for himself, and since that time the Kolts Electric Supply Company has enjoyed an ever increasing business, serving the needs of electrical contractors in this territory and handling the Chase line of electrical fixtures.

Pope Will Read Peace Declaration on Sunday

Vatican City, April 5 (AP).—
 The Pope has decided to read a declaration at the Easter service in St. Peter's Sunday which is expected to be a renewed appeal to the world for peace.

The Vatican announced that the homily in Latin would be read by the pontiff after the Gospel.
 Arrangements have been made by the Vatican radio station to broadcast the message along with the rest of the Easter ceremony on a wave-length of 31.06 meters.

The services will begin after 10 a. m., (4 a. m., E. S. T.) and last until noon.

Gillespie Given 5 to 10-Year Term

Granville Weeks as a witness in the case. He had asked the case go over since Granville Weeks was confined to a hospital. This had previously put the case over the term. District Attorney Cleon B. Murray objected and asked that the materiality of the witness be shown.

After inspecting the affidavit
 Mr. Murray objected on the grounds that the affidavit simply stated that Granville Weeks would be used to prove that the defendant and his uncle, Henry Weeks, deceased, had been friendly and that friendly relations existed at the time of the alleged acts.

Mr. Murray said he would admit the relations had been friendly and that on the day of the alleged act they had been out together. He held that Granville Weeks was not a necessary and material witness. Mr. Plunket said he believed he was entitled to show by proof the friendly relations. Mr. Murray said proof would show that they had been friendly.

Judge Traver reserved decision in the matter and directed Mr.
 Murray to have an examination made of the witness who is now confined to a hospital. A motion was made to put the case over the term because the witness, Granville Weeks, was not available. The decision was withheld until Friday and the examination of the witness will be made at Dr.
 Mathers' Sanitarium today.

Big Bill Gets Counsel

Freeman Wright of West Point was in court, indicted for rape, he had been represented by Frank Campochiaro. He has now withdrawn from the case. Big Bill was asked if he could get another attorney and he replied with a broad smile that he did not know, it depended on how much a lawyer wanted. He said he had some money. Judge Traver assigned Fred Stang with the understanding that if Wright could pay something it would be proper, but if he could not the defense would be gratis.

No. 15, The People vs. Jack Glassmen, went over the term on an agreement to make restitution.
 Complainant asked that the matter involving a check be held until later. Joseph Avis appeared and said that restitution would be made in full by June.

FOUR NAVY FLIERS DIE IN MID-AIR CRASH

Colliding about 2,000 feet aloft during launching ceremonies for the U. S. navy's new aircraft carrier Wasp at Quincy, Mass., two navy biplanes fell flaming to earth in nearby East Braintree, killing the four occupants. The planes set two houses afire, but in each case residents escaped injury. Here rescuers are shown removing wreckage of one of the ill-fated ships from the charred house.

Dora Wilkins of Lloyd was moved for trial by Mr. Murray. Michael Nardone for defendant said he was ready to proceed and the selection of a jury was begun. Because of the nature of the testimony the public will be excluded from the court room during the trial, Judge Traver stated.

Mills and Ward, New York, Will Audit City Books Again This Year

For a quarter of a century the firm of Mills & Ward, public accountants of New York City, has been annually engaged in auditing the city's books, and Tuesday evening by a vote of 8 to 4 the Common Council entered into an agreement to have them again audit the books this year for the sum of $1,800.

A resolution to that effect was introduced at the council meeting, and Alderman Nathan of the Eighth ward in speaking on the resolution, which he opposed, believed that the contract should be awarded to some local accountant.

Alderman Tremper of the Second ward in reply to Alderman Nathan said that the same question had been raised several years ago and at that time the city administration, as well as many former administrations, were of the opinion that the city's books should be audited by an out of town concern.

The resolution was adopted with the four Democratic aldermen, Messrs. Donnorumma, Nathan, Wolff and Ryan, voting in the negative.

Grant Petition

The laws and rules committee submitted a report on the petition of the Shell Oil Corporation to enlarge its present drive-in gas station at Wurts and McEntee streets. A public hearing had been held on the petition on March 30, at which time no one appeared in opposition to granting the petition.

The Shell Corp. plans to replace the present gas station with a more modern station costing $7,500.

The laws and rules committee recommended that the petition be granted. The report was adopted unanimously.

An ordinance was introduced carrying out the provisions of the petition and it was unanimously approved and adopted.

CIVIC LEAGUE AGAINST LIQUOR TAX

The Civic Bulletin, published by the Rev. O. R. Miller, state superintendent of the New York Civic League, comes out against increasing the liquor tax.

The Bulletin states: "Ever since the present liquor law was enacted in 1934 there have been various efforts to increase the tax on liquor. Governor Lehman's tax program submitted with his budget to the legislature would increase by fifty per cent the present tax on liquor. It is a great moral and social error, and it should be opposed by all thoughtful and sincere people."

"First because it would increase the number of bootleggers in our state. This has been the uniform history of the liquor traffic everywhere it has been legalized, that the higher the liquor tax has been the more men went out of the legal liquor business and carried on an illegal liquor business, or a bootleg trade, without paying any tax. In fact the result has been in some such cases that the state instead of receiving more from the liquor trade received less money. Bootleggers found it more profitable to bribe local officials to permit them to operate than to pay the large tax, and so they became illegal instead of legal liquor dealers. Second because we do not approve the city, town or state collecting revenue from the beverage liquor traffic. And we say if the liquor business is right, no tax or revenue should be imposed upon it any more than upon the milk business, the grocery or the bakery."

The Civic League superintendent, long an ardent campaigner against liquor, would be defeating his own purpose if he took any other stand, because it is certain beyond peradventure that if the liquor tax is increased it will encourage more bootleg traffic in un-tax-paid distilled spirits. And no person with common sense wants the return of the bootlegger, moonshiner and smuggler. Prohibitionists would strike a blow at their own cause, if they did not oppose the increased liquor tax.

From the standpoint of raising more money, it is erroneously conceived. Increased taxes would drive business out of the state with a resultant loss in revenue. The tax differential between New York and the state of Connecticut has already forced a considerable amount of liquor purchases out of New York and it is reasonable to believe that still more business would be lost by New York merchants to Connecticut and other neighboring states. In consequence the diversion of liquor sales, first to the bootleggers within the state and then to the neighboring states would result in less revenue at the higher rate than at the present rate.

TALKING STOP LIGHTS

An up-to-date traffic control apparatus is the radio policeman about to be tried out in a few spots in New York city. It employs a small robot radio transmitting unit which may be mounted on telephone poles or traffic stations. By it, messages concerning traffic safety, speeds and intersections may be broadcast automatically to motorists as they are driving through a radio-equipped zone. A sign would tell the driver as he approached the radio zone and give him the transmitter frequency.

With the same apparatus and a directional loudspeaker mounted on a traffic light pole, pedestrians can be warned vocally of impending light changes. For example, at a busy corner, pedestrians would hear a voice say, "Do not cross now; the light is about to change." The wise pedestrian would then not be caught in the middle of the street by cars responding promptly to a changed signal.

It might be startling, at first, to have spoken words from a loudspeaker added to visual traffic directions. The thing probably should not be used everywhere, but limited to intersections where traffic is especially confusing. Properly handled, it could be very useful.

THE ANTI-NAZI LEAGUE

The most impressive fact in Europe lately has been the stiffening of the spine of the Chamberlain government. Gradually the harm of the British surrender at Munich is being repaired. Britain is rearming with astonishing speed, and putting as much steel into her diplomacy as she puts into her armament. "A bold course is the best," the cabinet agrees.

Her diplomatic strategy is the encirclement of Germany by a ring of nations which for want of a better name are called "democratic." Some of them are rather autocratic, but they will serve the purpose as long as they stand with England and France against ruthless conquest. Even Russia, scorned in the Munich deal, is welcomed back into the anti-Nazi league.

Poland, hitherto scared and rather uncertain in her loyalty, is the latest democratic recruit. And this seems today the very heart of sound democratic strategy. If Poland and Russia can be held firm against Nazi aggression by a strong pledge of Franco-British support, it seems unlikely that Hitler will dare move against either of them. If he did, Nazi land would seem like a nut caught between the pincers. With such military strength on the east and west, smaller powers now doubtful might turn definitely against the common foe threatening the European community of nations.

Hitler has won his successes so far without firing a gun. He plays a military poker game. His bluff is now called. The game may be approaching a show-down.

WATER BUCKETS

The old oaken bucket was picturesque and poetical, says a doctor, but unsanitary and dangerous. This shocking testimony came out in the case of a sailor suing a steamship line for an intestinal ailment allegedly caused by drinking contaminated water.

Not that there was any old oaken bucket on the ship; but the situation, the plaintiff testified, was similar. That is, the water system was "slimy" and "full of mud, paint scales and grease." And slimy water, the doctor agreed, would be "contaminated."

Maybe so. Yet it seems a pity to take so much poetry out of life at one fell swoop—or, as you might say, at one well sweep. And many a man or woman who has drunk appreciatively from an old oaken bucket and been invigorated thereby will resent the accusation.

Streamers of green moss there may have been; but as for "mud, paint-scales and grease," that is an absurd libel. And if there were germs in the bucket, sturdy generations thrive on 'em.

SLIGHT DEFECT IN HEARING

In testing the hearing of a young patient, the physician was whispering certain numbers—8, 7, 5, 6—which the patient was to repeat. He was repeating the numbers correctly but the physician noticed that he had turned his head and was watching the physician's lips. With his eyes to the front, the physician standing behind, the patient was unable to repeat a single number correctly. He admitted that he had "got by" and "was getting by" by lip reading. His voice lacked resonance. This patient was making a mistake in not using a hearing aid as he would lose much of a lecture, a stage performance, or even a motion picture if he were unable to see the lips of the speaker or actor.

In regard to children, Dr. Horace Newhart, in Laryngoscope, says:
 "As a result of extensive hearing tests made by modern methods, it is known that a slight defect in hearing in the school child may cause such difficulties as speech defects, slowness in school, behavior problems, and inferiority complex. Further, the frustration, anxiety, and tiredness due to prolonged effort to hear may be partly to blame for disorders of speech."

"Extensive use of audiometers (machines to measure degree of hearing) has disclosed an amazingly high percentage of defective hearing which has been overlooked by the older methods—watch, loud whisper, tuning fork. New methods of testing are four or five times as accurate as older methods and should be used as widely as possible as early discovery of hearing defects is most important.
 There is no question but that a youngster, naturally as bright as other members of the class, but with a slight defect in hearing, is not only going to miss much which the teacher or others say, but will miss practically all that is said because he cannot make sense of what he does hear. School will become distasteful to him because he gets behind his fellow pupils, and an inferiority complex develops, all because his slight defect of hearing was unnoticed or disregarded.
 Fortunately, the testing of eyesight and hearing is now a regular procedure in many schools."

Imprecious Loot

Pueblo, Colo. (P)—The burglar who broke into the car of Mrs. Carrie Winkler was a man he must have been chagrined when he opened the leather suitcase he stole. It was Mrs. Winkler's sales sample case and it contained articles described by her as "corsets and corset accessories," about a dozen of them.

Stamps In The News

Vatican City postal officials were faced with a novel situation upon the death of Pope Pius XI on February 10. That was the first time since the Vatican was declared an independent state in 1929 that it had been without a pope.

The authorities took note of this situation by issuing a provisional stamp bearing the overprint, "Sede Vacante," which means, literally, "seat vacant." During the interim of 20 days until Eugenio Cardinal Pacelli was elected pope, this stamp—in seven denominations—was in circulation.

As far as can be learned, it is the first provisional stamp ever to be issued by the papacy—certainly the first by Vatican City. Persons throughout the city's post office to buy the stamp after it appeared.

When Italy became a nation back in the 1860's, the pope, shorn of all temporal powers, was a virtual "prisoner" at the Vatican. He was subject to Italian laws and the Vatican was a part of Rome. Naturally this was distasteful to the papacy.

The late Pius XI and Mussolini finally negotiated the Lateran treaties in 1929 whereby the Vatican was set apart as a wholly independent state. Now it has its own railroad (about 1,500 yards), its own jail and its own postal system. (The city's area is one-half square mile.)

Its Interregnum (between reigns) stamp is an overprinted issue of the first stamp printed by Vatican City, in 1929. The stamp is in the seven lowest values (5, 10, 20, 30, 50, 75 centesimi). It shows the Papal Crown and St. Peter's Keys. The overprint on it is "Sede Vacante. MCMXXXIX." Provisional issues were not printed in the six higher values of the same 1929 issue. Most logical explanation for this omission is the high values carry a portrait of Pius XI. It is believed the Vatican authorities thought it would be inappropriate to deface the countenance of the late pope with an overprint.

The stamp illustrated above is the purple 20 centesimi value, and was received by Eugene Klein of Philadelphia on February 20.

$180,000 Stamp Auction

Probably the most spectacular sale in recent months was held in Philadelphia, in the Fidelity-Philadelphia Trust building. On the block is the $180,000 collection of Twentieth Century British Empire stamps owned by the late Henry W. Roth of St. David's, Penna.

The sale was split up into three auctions—the last held on the 3d and 4th of April. February's auction (the first) drew representatives of President Roosevelt, Secretary Ickes and King Carol of Roumania as well as dealers from all parts of the world.

At that auction, the highest price paid for a stamp was $2,500 for one of the 39 known mint copies issued by Newfoundland for the De Pinedo Light. The stamp had been listed at $4,000.

The highest valued stamp in the collection will be auctioned in April. That is a 1902 King Edward VII

By DAVID LAWRENCE

(Copyright, 1939)

Washington, April 5.—There really should not be the slightest degree of surprise that a jury in Philadelphia has awarded treble damages under the Sherman anti-trust law against a labor union which staged a "sit-down" strike at the plant of the Apex Hosiery Company. Anybody who read the unanimous decision of the United States Circuit Court of Appeals nearly two years ago would have found the law against violence in interstate commerce clearly stated: In fact, on June 28, 1937, this correspondent presented extracts from the opinion, and then wrote:

"The foregoing not only lays the basis for the recovery of triple damages in a civil suit if the employers wish to pursue the matter in the federal courts, but it furnishes a prima facie case for the President of the United States and the attorney general to institute proceedings for violation of the June, 1937, statute relating to the use of force to induce an agreement in any matter affecting interstate commerce."

The statute in question forbids the seizure of any property or the use of violence to force an agreement, and specifies that only lawfully conducted strikes are exempted from the provisions. Since the Supreme Court of the United States now has affirmed that the use of the "sit-down" is not lawful, the case may be made against individuals who engage in a sit-down strike by invoking the interstate commerce laws plus the 1934 statute, sometimes referred to as the "anti-racketeering" law.

It is significant that the Circuit Court of Appeals' opinion in June, 1937, which, by the way, stands as a final judgment, because it was not reversed by the Supreme Court of the United States, used as a justification the same reasoning which led the highest court to uphold the Wagner labor relations act. The Supreme Court had held that Congress had the right to remove impediments to interstate commerce and that, if Congress felt that compulsory negotiation—or collective bargaining—was a means of removing such impediments, it could pass a law to that effect. Previously, the Supreme Court, in the so-called second Coronado case, had ruled that in interruption of production by direct action of a union was a conspiracy to violate the anti-trust laws. It is interesting now to recall the opinion of the Circuit Court of Appeals in June, 1937, because Judge Davis, speaking for the court, quoted this significant passage from the opinion of Chief Justice Hughes, in which the Wagner act was held constitutional just a few weeks before:

"When the intent of those unlawfully preventing the manufacture or production is shown to be to restrain or control the supply entering and moving in interstate commerce . . . their action is a direct violation of the anti-trust act. And the existence of that intent may be a necessary inference from proof of the direct and substantial effect produced by the employer's conduct."

Then Judge Davis continued with his own opinion:

"It may be that the ultimate intent of the conspirators in this case was to force the plaintiff to sign an agreement for a closed shop. This would be perfectly all right if the defendants had used lawful means to bring it about, but when they used unlawful means—the commission of crimes and the restraint of interstate commerce—they knew exactly what they were doing and must have intended as a necessary result, to do exactly what they did. The ultimate object which they had in view in no way exculpates them from the violation of the Sherman act."

"The defendants knew full well that the silk and cotton used in making hosiery came from outside Pennsylvania. They also knew that when they seized and stopped the operations in that factory and refused to allow $600,000 worth of finished hosiery to be sent to purchasers, they were restraining trade and the free flow of interstate commerce. This was a necessary and direct consequence of their acts and they must be held to have intended it."

Since a jury in federal court now has assessed $711,000 damages against the CIO hosiery union which conducted the sit-down strike, it is difficult to understand just what issues could be raised by the reported appeal to a higher court which have not already been raised and decided by the higher courts. It may be that unions are not financially able to meet such a high assessment, and, if this is the case, then it is possible that suits against individuals may follow. The point is that, irrespective of the provocation to violence, the system of American law presupposes resort to peaceful means and lawful use of concerted economic power rather than seizure of property, destruction of machines or interference with movement of goods from a plant to customers. It is not really a pro or anti-labor question at all, but a simple issue of obedience to law, or gangsterism.

Farley Summons Albany Meeting

Democratic Chairman Asks Aides to Meet April 11

James A. Farley, Democratic national and state chairman, has invited the 35 county chairmen of the eastern, central and northern sections of the state to a conference-luncheon at the DeWitt Clinton Hotel, Albany, on Tuesday, April 11. A round-table discussion will follow at which, it is hoped, many new ideas will be developed and plans made for local campaigns and the formulation of party policy and program. Several prominent state officials and party leaders have been invited to assist and give their views.

The 35 county chairmen will be in Albany that day to attend the $25-a-plate Jefferson Dinner that night at the Hotel Ten Eyck. Governor Herbert H. Lehman, Postmaster General James A. Farley and Lieutenant Governor Charles Poletti will be the speakers. Robert L. Livingston of Germantown will be toastmaster. It was learned today that Mr. Farley will have a surprise speaker, whose name will not be divulged until he is introduced. Acceptances to date indicate an attendance at the dinner of more than 500.

Proclamation Is Issued By Mayor for Good Friday

A special proclamation in observance of Good Friday was issued today by Mayor Conrad J. Heiselman. The proclamation follows:

"The thinking world is rejoicing in this spring time for the victory of love over hate, of life over death. Jew and Gentile in sacrament and prayer are turning to a suffering, loving God as to the clue to the mystery of a disconcerting life.

"On Good Friday of this week the Christian world with true spiritual vision will turn from the tantalizing mirage of pleasures, greeds, and material ambitions like —a child with tired feet homeward set.

Back to the Cross, and lo; our lids are wet.

"Materialism, greed, and selfish ambition turn away from sacrificial love and lead men to forget the Holy God, father of all mankind. Who gives and serves and loves. Never since 'the morning stars sang together' was it more evident than at this hour in the world's life that world fellowship and brotherhood can come only through sacrifice; through love of God; and through love of all our fellowmen.

"I ask that on Friday afternoon, between noon and 3 o'clock, the hours of the Crucifixion, we lay aside the world's work and do reverent homage to the Christ Who gave for the world His Life in love on Calvary's Cross."

CONRAD J. HEISELMAN,
Mayor

Man Old at 45 Blossom Queen Plans Advance

April 28 Named as Date When Ulster's Fair One Will Be Selected

Plans are progressing rapidly for the preliminary activities in connection with the selection of an Apple Blossom Queen from among the high school girls of Ulster county, as well as for the coronation which will mark her coronation at Forsyth Park on May 6, it was announced today.

Mrs. Kenneth H. LeFever, chairman of the committee on selection of the queen and the coronation, announced this morning that April 28 had been set as the date for the selection of the queen, who will be chosen from a list of contestants from the various high schools of the county. Preliminary contests will be held in the schools and the winners of those contests will appear in the final, to be held in the auditorium of the New Paltz Normal School.

Will Decorate Stage
John Burgevin has offered to decorate the stage at the New Paltz Normal for the occasion and Albert E. Milliken, another member of the committee, is now selecting judges who will make the final award. Mr. Milliken is endeavoring to secure the presence of one or two judges from New York city.

After the judges have made their choice and selected the queen, they will then select two more of the contestants to act as maids of honor at the coronation, while the others will act as ladies in waiting. In addition to these some two dozen or so boys and girls will be selected from the 4-H Clubs in the county to participate in the coronation ceremonies. The boys will serve as courtiers and pages and the girls will be maids in waiting.

Will Aid Contestants
Other arrangements in connection with the coronation to be held at New Paltz include the appointment of Mrs. N. LeVan Claver to assist the contestants in preparing for their appearance before the board of judges, and the naming of Mrs. Roger H. Loughran to give the girls some pointers on how to make a proper "stage entry" and other details concerned with that part of the evening's activity.

A change has been made in the rules this year in that each contestant will be permitted to select and wear an evening gown of her own choice, one which she considers will show her to the best possible impression. For the coronation ceremonies at the park, however, gowns will be alike and will be selected and furnished by the committee of which Mrs. LeFever is chairman.

Water Report Filed
The report of Ronder & Ronder, certified public accountants, who audit the books of the water department, was filed together with an explanatory letter from William H. Van Etten, president of the water board.

Mr. Van Etten called attention to the fact that the revenue from water rates has been sufficient to cover the necessary operating expenses of the department and to redeem the bonds that matured during the past year.

The board has retired $40,000 in bonds, and the bonded debt on behalf of the water department at the present time has been amortized to $840,000.

N. Spinnewer Joins Kolts Electric Force

Norman Spinnewer, who for some years has been employed in the business office of the Canfield Supply Company on the Strand, has accepted a position with the Kolts Electric Supply Company of central Broadway.

Mr. Spinnewer comes to the Kolts Company at the time that the organization is celebrating its third anniversary. It was in April, three years ago, that Harvey S. Kolts resigned a responsible position with the Canfield Company to launch into business for himself, and since that time the Kolts Electric Supply Company has enjoyed an ever increasing business, serving the needs of electrical contractors in this territory and handling the Chase line of electrical fixtures.

Pope Will Read Peace Declaration on Sunday

Vatican City, April 5 (U.P.)—The Pope has decided to read a declaration at the Easter service in St. Peter's Sunday which is expected to be a renewed appeal to the world for peace.

The Vatican announced that the homily in Latin would be read by the pontiff after the Gospel.

Arrangements have been made by the Vatican radio station to broadcast the message along with the rest of the Easter ceremony on a wave-length of 31.06 meters.

The services will begin after 10 a. m. (4 a. m. E. S. T.) and last until noon.

Granville Weeks as a witness in the case. He had asked the case go over since Granville Weeks was confined to a hospital. This had previously put the case over the term. District Attorney Cleon B. Murray objected and asked that the materiality of the witness be shown.

After inspecting the affidavit Mr. Murray objected on the grounds that the affidavit simply stated that Granville Weeks would be used to prove that the defendant and his uncle, Henry Weeks, deceased, had been friendly and that friendly relations existed at the time of the alleged acts.

Mr. Murray said he would admit the relations had been friendly and that on the day of the alleged act they had been out together. He held that Granville Weeks was not a necessary and material witness. Mr. Plunket said he believed he was entitled to show by proof the friendly relations. Mr. Murray said proof would show that they had been friendly.

Judge Traver reserved decision in the matter and directed Mr. Murray to have an examination made of the witness who is now confined to a hospital. A motion was made to put the case over the term because the witness, Granville Weeks, was not available. The decision was withheld until Friday and the examination of the witness will be made at Dr. Mathers' Sanitarium today.

Big Bill Gets Counsel

Freeman Wright of West Point was in court indicted for rape, he had been represented by Frank Campochiaro. He has now withdrawn from the case. Big Bill was asked if he could get another attorney and he replied with a broad smile that he did not know, it depended on how much a lawyer wanted. He said he had some money. Judge Traver assigned Fred Stang with the understanding that if Wright could pay something it would be proper, but if he could not the defense would be gratis.

No. 15, The People vs. Jack Glassmen, went over the term on an agreement to make restitution. Complainant asked that the matter involving a check be held until later. Joseph Avis appeared and said that restitution would be made in full by June. An abduction charge against

Colliding about 2,000 feet aloft during launching ceremonies for the U. S. navy's new aircraft carrier Wasp at Quincy, Mass., two navy biplanes fell flaming to earth in nearby East Braintree, killing the four occupants. The planes set two houses afire, but in each case residents escaped injury. Here rescuers are shown removing wreckage of one of the ill-fated ships from the charred house.

Dora Wilkins of Lloyd was moved for trial by Mr. Murray. Michael Nardone for defendant said he was ready to proceed and the selection of a jury was begun. Because of the nature of the testimony the public will be excluded from the court room during the trial, Judge Traver stated.

OLD HOME WEEK MURDER

by Phoebe Atwood Taylor

The Characters

Asey Mayo, Cape Cod sleuth.
Kay Thayer, cute girl reporter.

Yesterday: Kay reports a bruise on Jane's shoulder, possibly made by a gun kicking. Diving into a pond, Kay finds a shotgun.

Chapter 27

The Woman In Possession

THE couple who had been diving from the wharf took an intense interest in the shotgun Kay had salvaged.

"Gee, Sammy," the woman touched the trigger with her finger, "isn't it funny, huh? Isn't it funny? You know, I said I seen something down there, don't you remember? But I didn't think it was anything but a stick, maybe, Sammy, didn't you see something down there too? Didn't you think you seen something? I thought you said you did."

"Yeah," Sammy said. "I seen something. I didn't think it was a stick. I knew it was a gun. I was just going down for it when she come."

"See?" the woman said to Asey. "We knew it was there, all the time! Now, I don't want to get sore or anything, but we knew it was there, and we was going to get it, so you—"

"It pierces my heart," Kay said. "It shatters me to small bits, but neither of you possibly could have seen it. I didn't see it myself. I felt it. Therefore, if any claims arise—"

"Well, now just you look here!" the woman raised her voice. "I guess we did see it too! I guess we knew it was there! I guess, if anyone's going to march off with that gun, we are. Do you hear that?"

"I think," Asey said, "they heard you over in Westport Centre. And I rather think that you—"

"Fresh, huh?" Sammy demanded. "Want to start trouble, huh? Well, listen! We seen that gun, and it's ours, and who do you think you are, to—"

"And what's more," Sammy continued, "I lost a gun here in this lake last fall. My boat tipped over, and I lost—"

"Fiddlesticks," Kay said, wondering why Asey didn't make any more of a stand. He was fishing around in his pockets, handicapped somewhat by the shotgun firmly clutched under one arm. "Fiddlesticks, and pooh. I don't believe a word of it. You just think you can bully us into handing the gun over to you, that's all, and it's the most nonsensical notion I ever heard tell of."

"Listen!" Sammy shouted her into silence. "That gun is ours, see? It belongs to me. And we're going to have it, and take it—take it—"

He and the woman stared at the two badges Asey was nonchalantly fixing on the lapel of his jacket. One said, "Chief of Police," and the other was a state police badge.

"Well, well," the woman said hurriedly, "maybe it ain't your gun, Sammy. Yours was a bigger gun. It was a much better gun, too. After all, if they're going to get sore, why what's the use of raising a rumpus, I always say—"

Nerve And Gull

"It's been nice," Asey said, "havin' this little chat with you. Any time you feel like continuin' it, you'll find me at the office in the Town Hall. Ask for Mr. Mayo. So long."

Looking terribly injured and outraged, the couple departed. They were muttering, but they were wise enough not to mutter very audibly.

"Well, I never!" Kay said. "How simply—what nerve! What gall! Asey, did you ever in your life see anything like that?"

"Tourists," Asey said. "Just tourists. They'd call a cop if you stepped foot on the lawn of their own house—always providin' they got either a lawn or a house, but travelin' puts the gypsy into 'em. I found some one day makin' off with my great grandmother's best hooked rug that I'd been airin' on the line."

"They were pinching it?"

"Oh, my no, what a horrid thought!" Asey said. "Of course not! They'd left me fifty cents. Offered me two-fifty before they left. Didn't seem wise at that point to tell 'em how much Bill Porter made me insure it for—Kay, how in time did you find this gun?"

Kay smiled. "I was trying to make a nice spectacular dive to impress you, and it was shallower than I thought, and I bumped. You were right about the nasty bottom. It's all muggy with weeds and things. I hit something in the weeds and grabbed at it for fun, and that's the story. Asey, is it the one?"

"It is."

"But you haven't even looked at it!"

"See that tag? Says 'Anniversary' on it. And the gun ain't been in the water very long, either. Under the circumstances, I think you've done a noble task. Will you finish your swim so's we can get back an' look into it in a large way? While you're gettin' the mud off, I'm goin' to put the car top up. Our shower's just about hovein' over Ames's woods at this point."

"I'll hurry."

Asey stroled back to the car and put up the top, just as a few tentative drops of rain began to fall.

Kay hurried back and wrapped herself in a white terrycloth robe. "That's not bad, really," she said, "that water, I mean. It's warm, but the air's getting cold. I have a feeling that the clambake is going to be rather soggy. Asey, how do you get the car out of here? Can you turn around?"

"I can ease her out," Asey backed into a thicket. "That's the one trouble with this beast, she can take a pile of turnin' on these lanes. The blow comes if someone decides to drive down that little path as we're comin' up it. Someone, say, like Sammy an' his girl friend." He leaned out to gauge his distance from a clump of scrub oaks. "An' in that case we get a bill on the bumper or some scratched paint. Oho. My goodness gracious! Shan't you die!"

"What's wrong now?" Kay asked as he stopped the car and pulled on the brake.

"Look yonder, will you? There's food for thought."

"Dear Miss Fairlawn"

BACK over by the ice house another couple had appeared, but these two were no tourists. Not even a light drizzle could disguise the chubby figure of J. Arthur Brinley.

With him, a wrap over her bathing suit, was Madame Meaux.

"Teh, teh," Kay said. "Dear Miss Fairlawn, I always thought my husband was true to me, but recently we had a guest staying to our house, a Blonde Woman from Another World, and I find from my many warm friends that she was often seen in my husband's company, often in dishabille. Dear Miss Fairlawn, should I turn a deaf ear towards this entanglement, or should I bundle the little weasel into the meat chopper. Answer soon."

Asey chuckled.

"I wrote answers to a column like that," Kay said, "for six months, and for six months the world seemed populated entirely with Blonde Women and Tall Dark Men and Sprightly Widows and simply fiendish children, all violently demented. Asey, what is your Blonde Woman doing with that Faithful Husband?"

"Considerin' we're some of the Virtuous Wife's many warm friends," Asey said, "we'll park right in this thicket an' eavesdrop. It's a wife's privilege to know All."

"They see us, don't they? They simply must!"

"They ought to, but they ain't looked over this way, an' the car's behind bushes—wonder if we ain't misjudged J. Arthur, Kay? See him pursue her behind the ice house? All the same, I bet on Madame. This is what you might call a new slant on Brother Brinley."

Madame Meaux stroled to a little patch of sand shore, took off her robe and folded it with immense deliberation, while J. Arthur hovered restlessly in the background. With the same pointed deliberation, she walked to the edge of the water, dabbled a foot in it, and then walked doggedly into the pond.

J. Arthur called out something indistinguishable to her, but she never turned her head.

He called again, and then shrugged and walked over to the ice house and the old loading piles.

"I rather think," Kay said, "that J. Arthur has been forward. Maybe he's even made advances. Asey, by heaven—look!"

Brinley, after picking up a piece of broken oar, had walked out to the end of the piling and was prodding around almost exactly over the spot where Kay had found the shotgun.

"I think," Asey got out of the roadster, "that we'll go chat with Arthur. If he seen us leavin' he might feel we was miffed with him. An' I don't know anyone I have kinder thoughts towards than Arthur. I shouldn't want him to think otherwise."

"Who," Kay agreed, "are we, to slink off like a couple of ships in the night?"

Brinley's head jerked up at the sound of their approach, and he began nervously to edge back to shore.

"Hi," Asey's voice was silky. "Oh, hullo. How do you do? Er—how do you do?"

"Fine," Asey said. "Fine." After all, he thought, J. Arthur had asked him twice.

"It looks rather like rain, doesn't it?" Brinley dropped the broken oar down on the sand.

"It is raining," Asey said truthfully.

Nothing Is Ordinary

There is a story told of William Walcott, the noted English etcher, who first came to New York in 1924 to record his impression of the skyscraper city. After a week of gathering impressions, there came the day when he felt the urge to sketch. He tried vainly for a while to find a place where he could secure the paper he desired. Finally he looked up an old architect friend whom he had met in England. When an office boy was dispatched to buy sketching paper Walcott wandered about the architect's office. Seeing a boy wrapping up house plans Walcott asked: "What is that paper?"

"It is just ordinary wrapping paper," explained the boy. "Nothing is ordinary," corrected the artist, "if you know how to use it."

He took one of the big sheets, folded it and hurried away. On that ordinary wrapping paper Walcott, the master etcher, made two sketches. One sold for a thousand dollars, the other for five hundred! They will live among the famous dry-point etchings of the world. Nineteen thirty-nine will be just an ordinary year with 365 ordinary days. It's up to us to make those days extraordinary, to make them masterpieces of achievement. As you face the new year, remember Walcott's philosophy: "Nothing is ordinary if you know how to use it!"

Frosh—What is the date, please?

Professor—Never mind the date. The important thing is the examination.

Frosh—Well, sir, I wanted to have something right.

If the government wants to increase the circulation of money, it might try printing a little gossip on it.

"I trust that we shall get along very nicely, Ada," said Mrs. Brown to the maid she had just engaged. "for I am not at all difficult to please." "No, ma'am," replied the maid, "that's what I thought as soon as ever I saw the master."

In a dress-making establishment, the price of simplicity is outrageous.

Man Wanted—A man for hard work and rapid promotion who can find things to be done without the help of a manager and three assistants. A man who is neat in appearance and does not suik for an hour's overtime in emergencies. A man who listens carefully when he is spoken to and asks only enough questions to insure carrying out instructions.

If a radio is too loud one can turn it down. Unhappily one cannot deal that way with people.

A fashionably dressed woman approached the flower-seller and asked for a shilling's worth of blooms. After the purchase she inquired: "Will you be here next Wednesday, as I shall want some flowers for my daughter?" She's coming out that day." "She shall have the best on the market, ma'am," the woman answered. "What's she in for?"

If we lose any more money it will be because we repeat our mistakes, since we've tried everything at least once.

Wife—Oh, do come to Mrs. Baker's with me, Walter. She'll make you feel so at home.

Husband—Then what's the use of going?

"Is your daughter improving in her music?" "No. But the next best thing is happening. She's getting tired of it."

A good young man would get a better start in life if they started earlier in the morning.

Willie—Please, teacher what did I learn today?

Teacher—Why, Willie, what a peculiar question!

Willie—Well, that's what they'll ask me when I get home.

Newberry, S. C.—Thieves took all the hens—25 of them—from Lawrence Derrick's chickenhouse, but left the two roosters and this note:
"Get some pullets and start over again. We are coming back to see you!"

Singing Sentence
New York—Court attaches told Magistrate Richard E. McKiniry that Henry W. Armstrong, charged with illegal parking, had written the music for "Sweet Adeline" 36 years ago.

"Then sing it and I'll suspend sentence," the court ordered.
The defendant smilingly complied. The magistrate listened intently, then suspended sentence as he had promised.
"But I ought to fine you for your singing," he remarked.

Where, Oh Where?
Alhambra, Calif.—John F. Schneider's lot sticks 14 feet over into Alhambra; the rest is in Los Angeles.
He asked the Alhambra city council to refund his dog license fee because he was paying fees to both cities.
The council voted the refund

'Man in the Iron Mask'

The Island of Ste. Marguerite, near Cannes on the French Riviera, attracts many visitors. Here it was that during the reign of Louis XIV, in a rockbound monastery, rising out of the sea, one of the strangest mysteries of French history was lived out for 40 years by the "Man in the Iron Mask," whose tragic identity is unknown. Treated with royal honor, insofar as his physical care was concerned, his face hidden behind a fitted iron mask that was never lifted, this unknown man kept his lonely vigil of the sea until at last death set him free. Historians have never found the answer. Some have surmised that he was twin brother to the king... that he was Fouquet... that he was a royal betrayer... that it was a self-imposed penance... But, no one knows. And mystery lovers go to Ste. Marguerite to wander through the apartments of the strange figure and ponder on his fate.

For LOVELY SLENDERNESS Try the BREAD DIET

Follow This Bread Diet Outline*

This sample Diet Plan gives about 1500 calories a day, the reducing allowance for a moderately active woman, whose ideal weight would be 130 lbs., but who is 10 to 20 lbs. overweight. For more extreme overweight, consult your doctor about reducing.

BREAKFAST
1 glass fruit juice
Small serving lean meat, fish or fowl
2 SLICES BREAD, with 1/2 square butter
Clear coffee with 1 tsp. sugar

LUNCH OR SUPPER
Moderate serving lean meat, fish, fowl or 2 eggs
Average serving 1 green vegetable
2 SLICES BREAD, with 1/2 square butter
Average serving fruit salad

DINNER
1/2 glass fruit or tomato juice
Generous serving lean meat, fish or fowl
Average serving 2 vegetables, one green
2 SLICES BREAD, with 1/2 square butter
Small serving simple dessert
Coffee or tea (clear) 1 tsp. sugar

*Make sure, of course, that your overweight is not caused by a condition that requires medical treatment.

When you reduce on the Bread Diet, you should feel splendidly energetic—not weak, tired and irritable.
For bread is a valuable source of necessary food energy, and helps to maintain nerve and muscle tissue.

Scientific tests show that on the Bread Diet, you can enjoy 2 slices of bread with every meal—and lose weight! Try it!

CIVIC LEAGUE AGAINST LIQUOR TAX

The Civic Bulletin, published by the Rev. O. R. Miller, state superintendent of the New York Civic League, comes out against increasing the liquor tax.

The Bulletin states: "Ever since the present liquor law was enacted in 1934 there have been various efforts to increase the tax on liquor. Governor Lehman's tax program submitted with his budget to the legislature would increase by fifty per cent the present tax on liquor. It is a great moral and social error, and it should be opposed by all thoughtful and sincere people."

"First because it would increase the number of bootleggers in our state. This has been the uniform history of the liquor traffic everywhere it has been legalized, that the higher the liquor tax has been the more men went out of the legal liquor business and carried on an illegal liquor business, or a bootleg trade, without paying any tax. In fact the result has been in some such cases that the state instead of receiving more from the liquor trade received less money. Bootleggers found it more profitable to bribe local officials to permit them to operate than to pay the large tax, and so they became illegal instead of legal liquor dealers. Second because we do not approve the city, town or state collecting revenue from the beverage liquor traffic. And we say if the liquor business is right, no tax or revenue should be imposed upon it any more than upon the milk business, the grocery or the bakery."

The Civic League superintendent, long an ardent campaigner against liquor, would be defeating his own purpose if he took any other stand, because it is certain beyond peradventure that if the liquor tax is increased it will encourage more bootleg traffic in untaxed distilled spirits. And no person with common sense wants the return of the bootlegger, moonshiner and smuggler. Prohibitionists would strike a blow at their own cause, if they did not oppose the increased liquor tax.

From the standpoint of raising more money, it is erroneously conceived. Increased taxes would drive business out of the state with a resultant loss in revenue. The tax differential between New York and the state of Connecticut has already forced a considerable amount of liquor purchases out of New York and it is reasonable to believe that still more business would be lost by New York merchants to Connecticut and other neighboring states. In consequence the diversion of liquor sales, first to the bootleggers within the state and then to the neighboring states would result in less revenue at the higher rate than at the present rate.

TALKING STOP LIGHTS

An up-to-date traffic control apparatus is the radio policeman about to be tried out in a few spots in New York city. It employs a small robot radio transmitting unit which may be mounted on telephone poles or traffic stanchions. By it, messages concerning traffic safety, speeds and intersections may be broadcast automatically to motorists as they are driving through a radio-equipped zone. A sign would tell the driver as he approached the radio zone and give him the transmitter frequency.

With the same apparatus and a directional loudspeaker mounted on a traffic light pole, pedestrians can be warned vocally of impending light changes. For example, at a busy corner, pedestrians would hear a voice say, "Do not cross now; the light is about to change." The wise pedestrian would then not be caught in the middle of the street by cars responding promptly to a changed signal.

It might be startling, at first, to have spoken words from a loudspeaker added to visual traffic directions. The thing probably should not be used everywhere, but limited to intersections where traffic is especially confusing. Properly handled, it could be very useful.

THE ANTI-NAZI LEAGUE

The most impressive fact in Europe lately has been the stiffening of the spine of the Chamberlain government. Gradually the harm of the British surrender at Munich is being repaired. Britain is rearming with astonishing speed, and putting as much steel into her diplomacy as she puts into her armament. "A bold course is the best," the cabinet agrees.

Her diplomatic strategy is the encirclement of Germany by a ring of nations which for want of a better name are called "democratic." Some of them are rather autocratic, but they will serve the purpose as long as they stand with England and France against ruthless conquest. Even Russia, scorned in the Munich deal, is welcomed back into the anti-Nazi league.

Poland, hitherto scared and rather uncertain in her loyalty, is the latest democratic recruit. And this seems today the very heart of sound democratic strategy. If Poland and Russia can be held firm against Nazi aggression by a strong pledge of Franco-British support, it seems unlikely that Hitler will dare move against either of them. If he did, Nazi-land would seem like a nut caught between the pincers. With such military strength on the east and west, smaller powers now doubtful might turn definitely against the common foe threatening the European community of nations.

Hitler has won his successes so far without firing a gun. He plays a military poker game. His bluff is now called. The game may be approaching a show-down.

WATER BUCKETS

The old oaken bucket was picturesque and poetical, says a doctor, but unsanitary and dangerous. This shocking testimony came out in the case of a sailor suing a steamship line for an intestinal ailment allegedly caused by drinking contaminated water.

Not that there was any old oaken bucket on the ship; but the situation, the plaintiff testified, was similar. That is, the water system was "slimy" and "full of mud, paint scales and grease." And slimy water, the doctor agreed, would be "contaminated."

Maybe so. Yet it seems a pity to take so much poetry out of life at one fell swoop—or, as you might say, at one well sweep. And many a man or woman who has drunk appreciatively from an old oaken bucket and been invigorated thereby will resent the accusation.

Streamers of green moss there may have been; but as for "mud, paint-scales and grease," that is an absurd libel. And if there were germs in the bucket, sturdy generations thrive on 'em.

 SLIGHT DEFECT IN HEARING

In testing the hearing of a young patient, the physician was whispering certain numbers—8, 7, 5, 6—which the patient was to repeat. He was repeating the numbers correctly but the physician noticed that he had turned his head and was watching the physician's lips. With his eyes to the front, the physician standing behind, the patient was unable to repeat a single number correctly. He admitted that he had "got by" and was "getting by" by lip reading. His voice lacked resonance. This patient was making a mistake in not using a hearing aid as he would lose much of a lecture, a stage performance, or even a motion picture if he were unable to see the lips of the speaker or actor.

In regard to children, Dr. Horace Newhart, in Laryngoscope, says:
 "As a result of extensive hearing tests made by modern methods, it is known that a slight defect in hearing in the school child may cause such difficulties as speech defects, slowness in school, behavior problems, and inferiority complex. Further, the frustration, anxiety, and tiredness due to prolonged effort to hear may be partly to blame for disorders of speech."

"Extensive use of audiometers (machines to measure degree of hearing) has disclosed an amazingly high percentage of defective hearing which has been overlooked by the older methods—watch, loud whisper, tuning fork. New methods of testing are four or five times as accurate as older methods and should be used as widely as possible as early discovery of hearing defects is most important."
 There is no question but that a youngster, naturally as bright as other members of the class, but with a slight defect in hearing, is not only going to miss much which the teacher or others say, but will miss practically all that is said because he cannot make sense of what he does hear. School will become distasteful to him because he gets behind his fellow pupils, and an inferiority complex develops, all because his slight defect of hearing was unnoticed or disregarded.

Fortunately, the testing of eyesight and hearing is now a regular procedure in many schools.

 By DAVID LAWRENCE

(Copyright, 1939)

Washington, April 5.—There really should not be the slightest degree of surprise that a jury in Philadelphia has awarded treble damages under the Sherman anti-trust law against a labor union which staged a "sit-down" strike at the plant of the Apex Hosiery Company. Anybody who read the unanimous decision of the United States Circuit Court of Appeals nearly two years ago would have found the law against violence in interstate commerce clearly stated: In fact, on June 28, 1937, this correspondent presented extracts from the opinion, and then wrote:

"The foregoing not only lays the basis for the recovery of triple damages in a civil suit if the employers wish to pursue the matter in the federal courts, but it furnishes a prima facie case for the President of the United States and the attorney general to institute prosecutions for violations of the June, 1934, statute relating to the use of force to induce an agreement in any matter affecting interstate commerce."

The statute in question forbids the seizure of any property or the use of violence to force an agreement, and specifically says that only lawfully conducted strikes are exempted from the provisions. Since the Supreme Court of the United States now has affirmed that the use of the "sit-down" is not lawful, the case may be made against individuals who engage in a sit-down strike by invoking the interstate commerce laws plus the 1934 statute, sometimes referred to as the "anti-racketeering" law.

It is significant that the Circuit Court of Appeals' opinion in June, 1937, which, by the way, stands as a final judgment because it was not reversed by the Supreme Court of the United States, used as a justification the same reasoning which led the highest court to uphold the Wagner labor relations act. The Supreme Court had held that Congress had the right to remove impediments to interstate commerce and that, if Congress felt that compulsory negotiation—or collective bargaining—was a means of removing such impediments, it could pass a law to that effect. Previously, the Supreme Court, in the so-called second Coronado case, had ruled that interruption of production by direct action of a union was a conspiracy to violate the anti-trust laws. It is interesting now to recall the opinion of the Circuit Court of Appeals in June, 1937, because Judge Davis, speaking for the court, quoted this significant passage from the opinion of Chief Justice Hughes, in which the Wagner act was held constitutional just a few weeks before: "When the intent of those unlawfully preventing the manufacture or production is shown to be to restrain or control the supply entering and moving in interstate commerce . . . their action is a direct violation of the anti-trust act. And the existence of that intent may be a necessary inference from proof of the direct and substantial effect produced by the employer's conduct."

Then Judge Davis continued with his own opinion: "It may be that the ultimate intent of the conspirators in this case was to force the plaintiff to sign an agreement for a closed shop. This would be perfectly all right if the defendants had used lawful means to bring it about, but when they used unlawful means—the commission of crimes and the restraint of interstate commerce—they knew exactly what they were doing and must have intended, as rational beings, to do exactly what they did. The ultimate object which they had in view in no way exculpates them from the violation of the Sherman act."

"The defendants knew full well that the silk and cotton used in making hosiery came from outside Pennsylvania. They also knew that when they seized and stopped the operations in that factory and refused to allow $600,000 worth of finished hosiery to be sent to purchasers, they were obstructing trade and the free flow of interstate commerce. This was a necessary and direct consequence of their acts and they must be held to have intended it."

Since a jury in federal court now has assessed $711,000 damages against the CIO hosiery union which conducted the sit-down strike, it is difficult to understand just what issues could be raised by the reported appeal to a higher court which have not already been raised and decided by the higher courts. It may be that unions are not financially able to meet such high assessments, and if this is the case, then it is possible that suits against individuals may follow.

The point is that, irrespective of the provocation to violence, the system of American law presupposes resort to peaceful means and lawful use of concerted economic power rather than seizure of property, destruction of machines or interference with movement of goods from a plant to its customers. It is not really a pro or anti-labor question at all, but a simple issue of obedience to law, or gangsterism.

Oil heat at surprisingly low cost

wherever this "skinflint" burner is installed

That's what home owners say about the Model P Petro & Nokol Oil Burner. For no other burner has "Tubular Atomization" that produces lazy, quiet, more efficient soft flame combustion, resulting in greater heat release in the burning of the fuel.

Built for small home heating plants, this Petro & Nokol knows just how to squeeze every drop of fuel oil heat-dry. It's a "chiseler" that trims fuel oil bills.

See it. Priced today at bedrock, even though costs are rising. Install now—start paying next fall.

Sign-Up Started On Farm Program

Marked Interest Is Shown By County Farmers

The sign-up for the 1939 Agricultural Conservation Program is well under way, it was announced today. Ulster county farmers are showing a great deal of interest in the program this year and several hundred have already signed up, including quite a few who have never been in the program before, it was stated.

Any farmer in Ulster county is eligible to participate in the program. Any one interested can sign up by attending one of the meeting places listed below. Every farmer who plans to sign up is urged to appear at one of the places listed, as this will greatly reduce county expenses. It is anticipated that work sheets will be made out only at scheduled meeting places this year. If you have never been in the

Easter Paper Catches Fire In Store on Broadway

Colored paper used for decorating Easter baskets of candy caught fire at 8:50 o'clock Tuesday evening in the store at 108 Broadway, owned by Mrs. Adele Bregman and conducted by her daughters, Miss Anna Bregman, who was in the store at the time, had the presence of mind to douse the fire with several pails of water, and the fire was out when the fire department arrived in response to an alarm from Box 42. The damage was slight. The colored paper was on one of the shelves in the store.

Trout Is Plentiful

Albany, N. Y., April 5 (AP)—Note to anglers: There are still plenty of trout in New York state waters. The state conservation department reached that conclusion today after scanning meager reported catches since the season opened Saturday amid rain, snow and wind. The official conclusion: "The fishermen, rather than the fish, were hooked."

Popcorn Spread—A Prized Heirloom

Household Arts by Alice Brooks

Just One Square Joined Makes Handsome Pattern

COPY THE HOUSEHOLD ARTS, INC. PATTERN 6284

How proudly you'll "show off" this handsome spread that you crocheted yourself—and the compliments you'll receive!—all the result of crocheting and joining a number of these simple 4½ inch popcorn squares! An openwork pattern sets off the striking design and there are just enough popcorns to add an effective raised effect without making the spread heavy. Pattern 6284 contains directions for making square; illustrations of it and of stitches; materials needed; photograph of square.

To obtain this pattern send ten cents in coin to the Kingston Daily Freeman, Household Arts Dept., 259 W. 14th street, New York, N. Y. Be sure to write plainly your NAME, ADDRESS and PATTERN NUMBER.

CHILD'S "HEART-FLOWER" FROCK

MARIAN MARTIN

PATTERN 9020

A "dream" of a kiddie frock for school or best . . . with the sweetest of Heart-Flower pockets! So we prophesy that this new Marian Martin design will be a tremendous favorite with smart mothers who sew. Pattern 9020 has three cute versions . . . such good news for daughters who do not like being dressed alike. One style uses contrasting sleeve bands, pockets and ric-rac "leaves." Another has puff sleeves, Peter Pan collar and heart-shaped buttons. The third adds lace, to stress the princess lines of the bodice—and also the cuffs and round neck. Choose bright colors—they help keep children safe on thoroughfares.

Pattern 9020 may be ordered only in children's sizes 2, 4, 6, 8 and 10. Size 6 requires 1½ yards 35 inch fabric, ½ yard contrast and 1 yard ric-rac; size 6, 2 yards 35 inch fabric.

Send FIFTEEN CENTS in coin for this MARIAN MARTIN pattern. Be sure to write plainly your SIZE, NAME, ADDRESS, and STYLE NUMBER.

Send today for the very popular MARIAN MARTIN BOOK OF SPRING PATTERNS! You can solve ALL your spring sewing problems as you look it over from cover to cover. Every style is flattering and easy to stitch, whether for children, juniors, misses or matrons. The grand choice stresses party favorites, bridal attire, all-occasion frocks, sand-and-sea clothes . . . with Budget Ideas highlighted! . . . BOOK FIFTEEN CENTS. PATTERN FIFTEEN CENTS. Know Right Ways To Train Your Dog

Win Dog's Confidence

Two little puppies—eager to grow up to be smart, well-behaved dogs! And so they will when properly trained.

It's not hard to make a puppy understand if you win his confidence during puppyhood. A good rule is not to punish him with the hand that feeds him. When necessary speak sharply to him or tap him lightly with a folded newspaper.

Time to begin your puppy's "grown-up" schooling when he's about nine months old.

Easy then to teach such clever tricks as "Shake Hands!" When he's in a sitting position press your hand against the right side of his head. His right paw will naturally rise, then you quickly grab it and say "Shake Hands!" He'll soon get the idea.

Training goes more quickly, is more fun for you and doggy when he's in tiptop form. To have an alert healthy dog, know rules of

Milton Woman to Wed

New York, April 5, (Special)—Miss Margaret E. Hyatt, formerly of Milton and now of 122 East 34th street, New York, will become the bride of Joseph H. King of 52 Pine street, Sayville, L. I., in a ceremony to take place April 16 in St. Stephen's Church.

Father Rigo will officiate. A license to wed was issued to them at the Municipal Building here this afternoon. The bride-to-be was born in Milton, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Everett Hyatt. Mr. King, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Bartholomew King, was born in Lawrence, Mass.

Four Model Rooms

presenting furniture ensembles and home decorating ideas

on display at HARDENBERGH'S

TO Ulster County home-makers we are happy to announce that Model Rooms have been permanently set up in our store for the continuous showing of home furnishings. Each month one will be featured as the "Room-of-the-month," with furnishings appropriate to the season.

The rooms will be open for visits at any time during store hours. The April Room-of-the-month is a living room.

The installation of these Four Model Rooms is another step in modern merchandising progress. During the last year we have opened boarded-up windows to let in daylight, re-arranged floor spacing to accommodate display racks, and added a new department. The purpose has been to give our all-on-one-floor store greater capacity for a particular type of service.

We think the space devoted to our Model Rooms is space well spent. Ulster County is an unusual community of homes. They range from grand mansions to artists' humble studios, and from Colonial stone houses to contemporary dwellings. The personalities and tastes of the homeowners are as varied as the architecture.

That individuality we have tried to meet with a "personalized" home furnishings store. We have needed to do more than just sell furniture. We have needed to help create beautifully furnished homes after the ideals of their owners.

..... Thus we have found our niche in the community.

The Model Rooms have been set up so that we may demonstrate the many ways of decorating a window . . . experiment with lighting . . . show a piece of furniture as part of an ensemble . . . develop color schemes . . . present new ideas visually.

You are invited to visit the Model Rooms at your convenience.

Democratic Chairman Asks Aides to Meet April 11

James A. Farley, Democratic national and state chairman, has invited the 35 county chairmen of the eastern, central and northern sections of the state to a conference-luncheon at the DeWitt Clinton Hotel, Albany, on Tuesday, April 11. A round-table discussion will follow at which, it is hoped, many new ideas will be developed and plans made for local campaigns and the formulation of party policy and program. Several prominent state officials and party leaders have been invited to assist and give their views.

The 35 county chairmen will be in Albany that day to attend the $25-a-plate Jefferson Dinner that night at the Hotel Ten Eyck. Governor Herbert H. Lehman, Postmaster General James A. Farley and Lieutenant Governor Charles Poletti will be the speakers. Robert L. Livingston of Germantown will be toastmaster. It was learned today that Mr. Farley will have a surprise speaker, whose name will not be divulged until he is introduced. Acceptances to date indicate an attendance at the dinner of more than 500.

Proclamation Is Issued By Mayor for Good Friday

A special proclamation in observance of Good Friday was issued today by Mayor Conrad J. Heiseleman. The proclamation follows:

"The thinking world is rejoicing in this spring time for the victory of love over hate, of life over death. Jew and Gentile in sacrament and prayer are turning to a suffering, loving God as to the clue to the mystery of a disconcerting life.

"On Good Friday of this week the Christian world with true spiritual vision will turn from the tantalizing mirage of pleasures, greeds, and material ambitions like —a child with tired feet homeward set, Back to the Cross, and lo; our lids are wet.

"Materialism, greed, and selfish ambition turn away from sacrificial love and lead men to forget the Holy God, father of all mankind, Who gives and serves and loves. Never since 'the morning stars sang together' was it more evident than at this hour in the world's life that world fellowship and brotherhood can come only through sacrifice; through love of God; and through love of all our fellowmen.

"I ask that on Friday afternoon, between noon and 3 o'clock, the hours of the Crucifixion, we lay aside the world's work and do reverent homage to the Christ Who gave for the world His Life in love on Calvary's Cross."

CONRAD J. HEISELMAAN, Mayor

Correlation of Arts Studied By Club

The correlation of the arts was studied by the members of the Musical Society of Kingston at the regular monthly meeting held last evening at the home of Mrs. Henry F. Dunbar in Hurley. The program was in charge of Mrs. Florence W. Cubberley and Mrs. Dunbar.

The discussion of the topic was given by Mrs. Dunbar with the illustrative program in charge of Mrs. Cubberley. In her paper Mrs. Dunbar defined art in its general meaning and then discussed the basic principles of balance and contrast.

"Art," said Mrs. Dunbar, "is the expression of ideas, and taste in art is expressing the ideas in many different ways, some ideas being more aptly expressed in one art than another."

Mrs. Dunbar then discussed the two branches of art, discursive, as speech and drama, and nondiscursive, as the graphic arts which give instantaneous expression. The dance, she said, is both discursive and nondiscursive, and the most complete of all the arts. All the arts attain the same results but have different treatments, and each art must be learned and understood. In judging the quality of the art, tastes may differ, but in the judging, questions such as, is the idea fine, is the medium well chosen, is the artist skillful in bending the medium to his will, must be answered.

Two numbers were given on the program which followed which illustrated the dance and music. During her talk, Mrs. Dunbar illustrated drama with references to literature works and pictures and models illustrative of her points of art.

The dance were two Scandinavian dances given by Mrs. Mortimer B. Downer and Miss Caroline Port, accompanied by Mrs. Lloyd R. LeFever.

The music was an operatic scene of the spinning chorus from Wagner's "The Flying Dutchman," under the direction of Peter Knauth, with Mrs. William S. Eltinge as accompanist. The part of Senta was sung by Mrs. Dunbar and of Mary by Mrs. William Macgregor Mills. Members of the chorus were Mrs. LeRoy Wood, Miss Helen Turner, Miss Catherine McCommons, Miss Alberta Davis, Mrs. John L. MacKinnon, Mrs. Lloyd R. LeFever, Miss Margaret Howe, Mrs. Warren Ingalsbe, Mrs. Mortimer B. Downer and Miss Caroline Port.

During the business meeting which preceded the program, Mrs. Lloyd R. LeFever, president, appointed the following committees for the ensuing year: Program committee, Miss Lucinda Merritt; Mrs. William Macgregor Mills; Harry P. Dodge and Miss Helen Turner; membership committee, Miss Jane Mauterstock; Mrs. Florence W. Cubberley and Miss Caroline Port; social committee, Mrs. Bertrand B. Bishop, Mrs. Lester Decker, Mrs. R. R. Gross and Mrs. Warren Ingalsbe.

Reports on the Federation Day, April 29, were made by Mrs. Dunbar, Mrs. Mills reported on a meeting of the board of directors of the State Federation of Music Clubs which she attended last Friday, and Mrs. Downer reported on a meeting of the Women's Field Army for the Control of Cancer which she had attended to represent the Musical Society.

Mrs. Maurice W. Verno of Green street was welcomed into the membership of the club. The rehearsal of the World's Fair group will be held Tuesday, April 11, at 7 o'clock, at the home of Miss Margaret Howe, 33 Emerson street.

Plans to Start For Music Week

Dates Set From May 7-13; Zucca Heads Committee

"Support Group Activities" will be the keynote of National Music Week this year, according to announcement by David Sarnoff, chairman of the National Music Week committee, which has headquarters in New York city. Particular effort will be directed toward community musical organizations open to the young adult as a means of expression for musical ability developed in school and college. Special attention also will be given to professional groups.

Mr. Sarnoff said that the observance would continue to stress the general theme adopted almost from the beginning of the celebration in 1924 — wider recognition for meritorious productions of American composers.

Paul A. Zucca, who has been chairman of the music week committee in Kingston since it was first observed here, some 12 years ago, says that as usual plans will be formulated for a creditable observance here this year. His committee will meet shortly to arrange for a general participation in Music Week by local musicians and musical organizations.

Kingston made a most creditable showing last year as one of some 2,500 cities and towns participating in Music Week observance. Among organizations which took part were the Apple Blossom Festival, Kiwanis Club, Mendelssohn Club, the Musical Society of Kingston, the public schools and some of the churches.

The week of May 7 to 13 has been set aside as National Music Week this year.

Slightly Puzzled

Seattle, April 5 (AP)—A court-appointed administrator for the estate of Harry Lindholtz was greeted warmly at the Lindholtz home by Lindholtz. The administrator, Louis Knafflich, retired hurriedly without explaining his mission. The fact he had identified the body of a man at the county morgue as that of Lindholtz, his old friend shipmate, didn't detract from Knafflich's embarrassment.

No Smallpox Here Says Health Officer

Dr. L. E. Sanford, health officer, said this afternoon that no cases of smallpox had been reported in Kingston or vicinity, and that he had received no report as yet of any cases in the Albany area.

A slight smallpox scare was brought to the attention of Dr. Sanford on Sunday when a family got in touch with the police department and asked to have a physician sent to the house as they were unable to get a physician.

One of the members of the family had a badly swollen face.

It proved to be a case of hives, caused, it was said, from eating too much pork. Dr. Sanford treated the patient, a woman.

IT'S A DURABLE SMILE

...a difficult international situation that has required much of his time, President Roosevelt wore the gleeful expression at his outdoor press conference in Warm Springs, Ga.

Senate Group Votes 100-Million Fund To Support Relief

Washington, April 5 (AP)—A Senate appropriations subcommittee voted unanimously today to recommend a $100,000,000 relief appropriation. That sum was voted by the House after President Roosevelt had requested $150,000,000.

Members of the subcommittee said the $100,000,000 allotment would receive general support from both administration supporters and economy-bloc senators.

Administration floor leaders previously had sought a compromise $125,000,000 appropriation, but economy-minded senators refused to support such an allocation.

The full appropriations committee was to act on the relief allotment later today, and it was expected to come before the Senate tomorrow.

The House voted meanwhile to give its appropriations committee $25,000 for expenses of a "thorough investigation" of the Works Progress Administration.

A resolution providing the money was approved unanimously. It requires no action by the Senate and does not need a presidential signature.

On another pressing congressional issue, Henry L. Stimson, one time Republican secretary of state, urged congress and the nation to abandon the theory of isolation and give President Roosevelt greater powers to discriminate between aggressors and victims in wars.

Stimson solemnly said that "our present Caucasian civilization is threatened with the gravest danger with which it has been confronted for four centuries."

The House pigeon-holed a Senate proposal to reduce government stocks of loan cotton by returning it to farmers for five cents a pound.

Coster's Brothers Plead Innocent in New York

New York, April 5 (AP)—The three surviving brothers of F. Donald Coster-Musica, self-slain president of the McKesson and Robbins Drug Company, and five co-defendants pleaded innocent in federal court today to charges of mail fraud, violation of the Securities Exchange Act, and conspiracy.

After a brief hearing, Federal Judge Vincent L. Leibel set bail totaling $37,500 for the eight members of the group of nine who were indicted last Thursday on 14 counts.

Arraignment of the ninth defendant, Benjamin Simon, was deferred until tomorrow.

Eggs Are Lower

Chicago, April 5 (AP)—The cheapest eggs in five years will sport their rainbow colors Sunday and help make the Easter rabbit's 1939 task fairly easy. At 16 1/2 cents wholesale best eggs cost slightly less than a year ago and are priced the lowest since 1934.

BENNY FINED ON SMUGGLING CHARGE

Jack Benny, (right) comedian, emerges from federal court in New York city with his Los Angeles lawyer, Lloyd Wright, after Benny had been fined $10,000 and given a suspended sentence of a year and a day on his plea of guilty to a technical charge of jewel smuggling. "I am ashamed," said Benny in court, and later issued a statement.

Stimson Asks More Powers for F.D.R. To Pick Aggressors

Former Secretary of State Would Throw Isolation Overboard; Says He 'Weighs Words'

Washington, April 5 (AP)—Henry L. Stimson, one-time Republican secretary of state, urged Congress and the nation today to throw isolation overboard and give President Roosevelt greater powers to discriminate between aggressors and victims in war.

"I weigh my words," Stimson told the Senate foreign relations committee, "when I say that I believe that our present Caucasian civilization is threatened with the gravest danger with which it has been confronted for four centuries."

Stimson, first witness at hearings on proposed changes in the neutrality act, said the theory of isolation "looks a little shopworn" and that the neutrality act, based on the former code of nations, was outmoded.

Sobering Effect

Asking that wider discretionary powers be given the President, the former cabinet officer remarked that the handling of foreign affairs had a most sobering effect upon those entrusted with them and added:

"I am not impressed with the fear that in that zone presidential discretion is likely to be abused."

Stimson added that should a general war start in Europe this spring, the present neutrality law might facilitate a result that would make the United States "the next victim of attack."

Although Stimson did not name Germany, Italy and Japan by name, he said some governments, by aggressive tactics, had rejected "with open scorn and contempt," the code of behavior of nations, based on mutual respect.

False Psychology

Stimson said that in his belief the neutrality act was creating a false psychology abroad.

"The American people are not insensible to cruelty and aggression," he said. "Nor are they so unintelligent that under the conditions of today they cannot distinguish an aggressor nation from its victim. On the contrary, being served with the most free and enterprising press in the world, they are probably better informed of the facts necessary for such a determination than any other people."

"Moreover, they are not a constitutionally timid people nor are they smitten with such an inferiority complex as to make them wish their government to avoid decisions which are necessary to their own future interest."

Fantastic Falsehood

"Yet the form of this statute today tends to make the outside world believe each one of these fantastic falsehoods and to guide their own policy in that belief...."

Asked by Senator Borah (R-Idaho) how he would frame a law so as to designate an aggressor, Stimson replied that he would limit such a designation to violators of treaties with this country.

The witness related how, when he was secretary of war some years before he became President Hoover's secretary of state, he had aided in drafting a resolution when Congress passed 27 years ago giving the President power to embargo the shipment of arms in this hemisphere where civil strife was involved. He said this was extended to all nations in 1922.

Possible Model

Stimson cited this resolution as a possible model for a law which might be applied to armed conflicts between nations.

"I take it from your experience which you have just related, that you are in favor of preventing the sale of arms to nations engaged in war?" Borah asked.

"That's the answer," Stimson replied firmly, adding that he believed this should be accomplished by delegating power to the President to act in an emergency and not through a rigid law framed two or three years before.

Chief among the proposed changes in the act now before the committee is an amendment by Chairman Pittman (D-New.) to permit the sale of arms and ammunition to belligerents on a "cash and carry" basis. Such sales now are prohibited by the act.

More than a fourth of the farms in the United States produce an average of less than $600 worth of products annually—and 15 per cent of this number produce less than $400 worth of commodities.

OLD HOME WEEK MURDER

by Phoebe Atwood Taylor

The Characters
Asey Mays, Cape Cod sleuth.
Kay Thayer, cute girl reporter.

Yesterday: Kay reports a brute on Jane's shoulder, possibly made by a gun kicking. During into a pond, Kay finds a shotgun.

Chapter 27

The Woman In Possession

THE couple who had been diving from the wharf took an intense interest in the shotgun Kay had salvaged.

"See, Sammy," the woman laughed the trigger with her finger. "It's fun, isn't it? Isn't it funny? You know, I said I seen something down there, don't you remember? But I didn't think it was anything but a stick, maybe. Sammy, didn't you see something down there too? Didn't you think you seen something? I thought you said you did."

"Yeah," Sammy said. "I seen something. I didn't think it was a stick. I knew it was a gun. I was just going down for it when she come."

"See?" the woman said to Asey. "We knew it was there, all the time. Now, I don't want to get sore or anything, but we knew it was there, and we were going to get it, so you—"

"It pierces my heart," Kay said. "It shatters me to small bits, but neither of you possibly could have seen it. I didn't see it myself. I felt it. Therefore, if any claims arise—"

"Well, now just you look here!" the woman raised her voice. "I guess we did see it too! I guess we knew it was there! I guess, if anyone's going to march off with that gun, we are. Do you hear that?"

"I think," Asey said, "they heard you over in West Centre. And I rather think that you—"

"Fresh, huh?" Sammy demanded. "Want to start trouble, huh? Well, listen! We seen that gun, and it's ours, and who do you think you are, to—"

"And what's more," Sammy continued, paying no attention to the woman, "I lost a gun here in this lake last fall. My boat tipped over, and I lost—"

"Fiddlesticks," Kay said, wondering why Asey didn't make any more of a stand. He was fishing around in his pockets, handicapped somewhat by the shotgun firmly clutched under one arm. "Fiddlesticks, and pooh. I don't believe a word of it. You just think you can bully us into handing the gun over to you, that's all, and it's the most non-epical notion I ever heard tell of."

He and the woman stared at the badges Asey was nonchalantly fingering on the lapel of his jacket. "See, 'Chief of Police,' and the other was a state police badge."

"Oh, well," the woman said hurriedly, "maybe it ain't your gun, Sammy. Yours was a bigger gun. It was a much better gun, too. After 'I, if they're going to get sore, why what's the use of raising a rumpus. I always say—"

Nerve And Gali

"It's been nice," Asey said, "havin' this little chat with you. Any time you feel like continuin' it, you'll find me at my office in the Town Hall. Ask for Mr. Mays."

Looking terribly injured and outraged the couple departed, but they were wise enough not to mutter a word.

"Well, I never!" Kay said. "How simply—what nerve! What gall! Asey, did you ever in your life see anything like that?"

"Tourists," Asey said. "Just tourists. They'd call a cop if you stepped foot on the lawn of their own house—always providin' they got either a lawn or a house, but travelin' puts the gypsy into 'em. I found some one day makin' off with my great grandmother's best hooked rug that I'd been aimin' on the line."

"They were pinching it?"

"Oh, my no, what a horrid thought!" Asey said. "Of course not! They'd be off by fifty cents. Of course not! They'd be off by fifty cents. Of course not! They'd be off by fifty cents."

Didn't seem wise at that point to tell 'em how much Bill Porter made me insure it for—Kay, how in time did you find this gun?"

Kay smiled. "I was trying to make a nice spectacular dive to impress you, and it was shallower than I thought, and I bumped. You were right about the nasty bottom. It's all muggy with weeds and things. I hit something in the weeds and grabbed at it for fun, and that's the story. Asey, is it the one?"

"It is."

"But you haven't even looked at it!"

"See that tag? Says 'Anniversary'

Special' on it. And the gun ain't been in the water very long, either. Under the circumstances, I think you've done a noble task. Will you finish your swim so we can get back an' look into it in a large way? While you're gettin' the mud off, I'm goin' to put the car to top up. Our shower's just about hovein' over Ames's woods at this point."

"I'll hurry," Asey strolled back to the car and put up the top, just as a few tentative drops of rain began to fall. Kay hurried back and wrapped herself in a white terrycloth robe.

"That's not bad, really," she said, "that water. I mean, it's warm, but the air's getting cold. I have a feeling that the clambake is going to be rather soggy. Asey, how do you get the shower out of here? Can you turn around?"

"I can ease her out," Asey backed into a thicket. "That's the one trouble with this beast, she can take a pile of turnin' on these lanes. The blow comes if someone decides to drive down that little path as we're comin' up it. Someone, say, like Sammy an' his girl friend." He leaned out to gauge his distance from a clump of scrub oaks. "An' in that case we get a bill on the bumper or some scratched paint. Oh, my goodness gracious! Shant' you die?"

"What's wrong now?" Kay asked as he stopped the car and pulled on the brake.

"Look yonder, will you? There's food for thought."

Dear Miss Fairlawn

BACK over by the ice house another couple had appeared, but these two were no tourists. Not even a light drizzle could disguise the chubby figure of J. Arthur Brinley.

With him, a wrap over her bathing suit, was Madame Meaux. "Tch, tch," Kay said. "Dear Miss Fairlawn, I always thought my husband was true to me, but recently we had a guest staying to our house, a Blonde Woman from Another World, and I find from my many warm friends that she was often seen in my husband's company, often in dishabille. Dear Miss Fairlawn, should I turn a deaf ear towards this entanglement, or should I bundle the little weasel into the meat chopper. Answer soon."

Asey chuckled. "I wrote answers to a column like that," Kay said, "for six months, and for six months the world seemed populated entirely with Blonde Women and Tall Dark Men and Sprightly Widows and simply fiendish children, all violently demented. Asey, what is your Blonde Woman doing with that Faithful Husband?"

"Considerin' we're some of the Virtuous Wife's many warm friends," Asey said, "we'll park right in this thicket an' eavesdrop. It's a wife's privilege to know all."

"They see us, don't they? They simply must!"

"They ought to, but they ain't looked over this way, an' the car's behind bushes—wonder if we ain't misjudged J. Arthur, Kay? See him pursue her behind the ice house? All the same, I bet on Madame. This is what you might call a new slant on Brother Brinley."

Madame Meaux strolled to a little patch of sandy shore, took off her robe and added it with immense deliberation while J. Arthur hovered restlessly in the background. With the same pointed deliberation, she walked to the edge of the water, dabbled a foot in it, and then walked doggedly into the pond.

J. Arthur called out something indistinguishable to her, but she never turned her head.

He called again, and then shrugged and walked over to the ice house and the loading piles.

Brinley, after picking up a piece of broken oar, had walked out to the end of the piling and was prodding around almost exactly over the spot where Kay had found the shotgun.

"I think," Asey got out of the roadster, "that we'll go out with Arthur. If he seen us leavin' he might feel we was miffed with him. An' I don't know anyone I have kinder thoughts towards than Arthur. I shouldn't want him to think otherwise."

"Who," Kay agreed, "are we, to sink off like a couple of ships in the night?"

Brinley's head jerked up at the sound of their approach, and he began nervously to edge back to shore.

"Hi," Asey's voice was silky. "Oh, hullo. How do you do? Er—how do you do?"

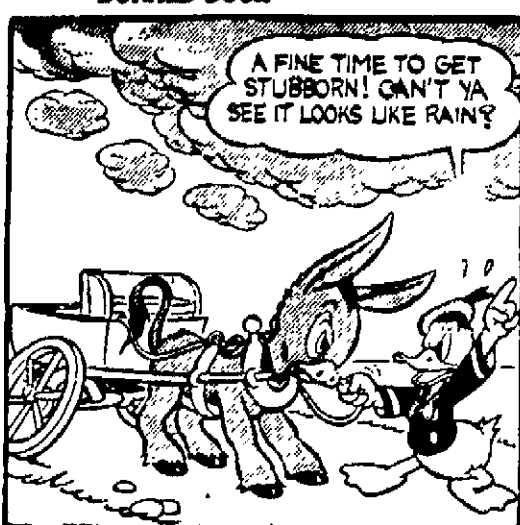

"Fine," Asey said. "Fine." After all, he thought, J. Arthur had asked him twice.

"It looks rather like rain, doesn't it?" Brinley dropped the broken oar down on the sand.

"It is raining," Asey said truthfully.

Nothing Is Ordinary

There is a story told of William Walcott, the noted English etcher, who first came to New York in 1924 to record his impression of the skyscraper city. After a week of gathering impressions, there came the day when he felt the urge to sketch. He tried vainly for a while to find a place where he could secure the paper he desired. Finally he looked up an old architect friend whom he had met in England. While an office boy was dispatched to buy sketching paper Walcott wandered about the architect's office. Seeing a boy wrapping up house plans Walcott asked: "What is that paper?"

"It is just ordinary wrapping paper," explained the boy. "Nothing is ordinary," corrected the artist, "if you know how to use it!"

He took one of the big sheets, folded it and hurried away. On that ordinary wrapping paper Walcott, the master etcher, made two sketches. One sold for a thousand dollars, the other for five hundred! They will live among the famous dry-point etchings of the world. Nineteen thirty-nine will be just an ordinary year to us, but it will be just an ordinary year to the man who knows how to use it!

Willie—Please, teacher what did I learn today?

Teacher—Why, Willie, what a peculiar question!

Willie—Well, the's what they'll ask me when I get home.

inquired: "Will you be here next Wednesday, as I shall want some flowers for my daughter? She's coming out that day." "She shall have the best on the market, ma'am," the woman answered. "What's she in for?"

If we lose any more money it will be because we repeat our mistakes, since we've tried everything at least once.

Wife—Oh, do come to Mrs. Baker's with me, Walter. She'll make you feel so at home.

Husband—Then what's the use of going?

"Is your daughter improving in her music?" "No. But the next best thing is happening. She's getting tired of it."

A good many young men would get a better start in life if they started earlier in the morning.

Willie—Please, teacher what did I learn today?

Teacher—Why, Willie, what a peculiar question!

Willie—Well, the's what they'll ask me when I get home.

There will be a joint communion service of the Krumville and Lyonsville Reformed Churches this week Thursday evening at 7:30 o'clock, with the Rev. Harold C. Hoffman, pastor of the Stone Ridge Reformed Church, in charge, assisted by the pastor of both local churches. This service will be held at the Lyonsville Reformed Church.

Betty Jane and Robert Lobdell of Nassau are spending their Easter vacation with their grandparents, the Rev. and Mrs. William H. Barringer, at the parsonage.

The Church School will meet next Sunday morning at 10 o'clock with Clayton Christiana, the superintendent, in charge. Morning worship will be at 11 o'clock, with sermon by the pastor, the Rev. William H. Barringer. Subject of sermon will be "The Joy of Easter." Subject of children's sermon, "Springtime."

Mr. and Mrs. Conrad Christensen, who were ill last week, are able to be about again.

The regular monthly meeting of the Ladies' Aid Society will be held next week on Friday at 2 p. m., instead of Wednesday at the home of Mrs. Martin Thomsen at Olive Bridge.

The new hymn books were used at the church last Sunday for the first time and were enjoyed by all present. Sunday, April 16, it is expected there will be a dedication service at the church for the new hymnals.

National Basketball Champions Play Colonials Tonight

Renaissance Five Plays Local Stars At Auditorium

Sedranites Will Try to Uphold Supremacy of Other Local Teams—Rens Here With Flashy Youngsters

This is the night for that basketball classic at the municipal auditorium to prove two things—whether the Colonials can keep up the record of their predecessors as conquerors of the Renaissance on the Broadway boards, and whether local interest warrants plans to bring Barney Sedran's team back next season.

When Frank Morgenweck, bossed professional basketball at the auditorium, his cagers used to take the measure of the Rens, despite great efforts on the part of the famous colored team to win. Sedran's cagers distinguished themselves as superior to any other band of players to represent Kingston in the American League by winning the championship this season, and their chances should be at least as good as Morgie's old club.

Colored Flash

ZACK CLAYTON

"I think we can uphold the reputation of Kingston when we clash with the Rens," said Manager Sedran, "but it must be remembered that the great colored team is better this year than ever, with those additional youngsters Boss Douglas added to his roster to speed up the club." They are Clayton, Gates and Bell.

The Rens recently won the national professional basketball championship in Chicago, where the Colonials were eliminated in the quarter-finals. Despite the failure of his Green and White cagers to click out west, and their slump in the American League president's cup playoffs, Sedran has hopes of seeing them win tonight.

The other angle in tonight's game involves the return of the Colonials to the auditorium next year to represent Kingston in the American League. Yesterday, a local committee backing the Sedranites said that if response was heavy enough to the Colonials-Rens booking efforts would be made to keep Kate Smith's Celtics here for the 1939-40 season. Patronage fell off to an alarming extent during the playoff games at the Broadway court, but the consensus is that the fans stayed away on account of advanced prices. Tonight the admission and reserved seat charges will be the same as during the regular season with no advances.

As far as the game is concerned, everybody agrees that it will be nothing short of lightning-like action with the two aggregations of champions battling hard to cop the laurels.

The tentative lineups:

Hope for Dodgers In "Red" Evans

By HUGH S. FULLERTON, JR.

New York, April 5 (AP)—The latest chunk of dynamite to get mixed up in the generally explosive relations between the Brooklyn Dodgers and New York Giants is Russell "Red" Evans, a 30-year-old right-hander who acts like a walking advertisement for his home town—Energy, Illinois.

If Evans goes as well during the regular season as he has this spring, Secretary Eddie Brannick of the Giants probably will begin ducking every time he sees a telegraph messenger for fear it's another ribbing wire, sent collect, from his enemy John McDonald of Brooklyn.

For Evans, who did a great job of hurling for New Orleans last summer, became Brooklyn property for the exceedingly low price of $7,500, because of a Giant boner. Bill Terry purchased him from the Pelicans for about $5,000 more than that last fall and sent him to the Giants' No. 1 farm at Jersey City. But he neglected to put Evans on the New York reserve list, thus leaving him eligible for the draft. Last winter the Dodgers grabbed him up by the draft route, disregarding some not especially subdued murmurs of "robbery" and "Brooklyn ethics."

Now if Red can knock off the Giants a few times next summer, everything will be practically perfect from the Flatbush viewpoint. And so far there's no indication that he can't do it. He has pitched 17 innings in the grapefruit league and 16 of them have been scoreless. He gave the Reds three runs in one inning of his second game. On Monday he blanked Washington for seven innings with six hits.

Last year he won 21 games and lost 14 with the weak New Orleans club and compiled an earned average of 2.83. That won him the nomination as the Southern Association's most valuable player.

TRAINING CAMP BRIEFS

By The Associated Press

Baton Rouge, La.—Johnny Wittig, the young hurler from Baltimore, must learn to be a little more deceitful if he is to stick with the New York Giants. Wittig has plenty of "stuff" and has no difficulty finding the center of the plate, but he does it too often and shows by his actions what he's going to throw. More concealment and cutting of the corners are Manager Bill Terry's prescription.

Lakeland, Fla.—Al Todd, Brooklyn's recently acquired catcher who has been burned up by the criticism he received in connection with the Pirates' collapse last fall, wants Pie Traynor to know that he has been given Babe Phelps' clean-up position in the Dodger batting order. "Wait, untraynor," he shouts when he is told, "he hopes Pie didn't miss the news of yesterday's two homers. With Paul (no-longer Dizzy) Trout and Tommy Bridges hurling for Detroit, the Dodgers and Tigers played their last exhibition game here today before heading north."

Dallas, Tex.—Outfielder Tommy Henrich, who has been filling in for Lou Gehrig at first for the Yankees, is hoping Lou has a good year. "I'd rather play the outfield," he explains. "I think I can hold my own out there, but I don't kid myself about being a finished first baseman. The position is new to me."

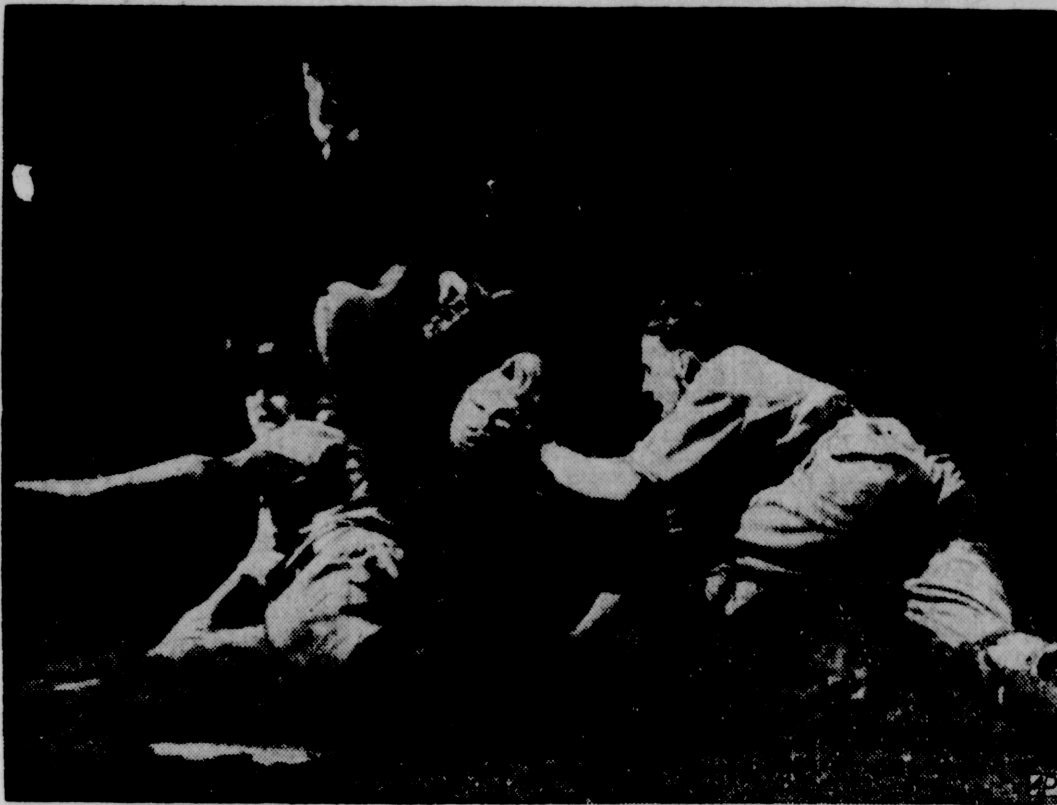

Daytona Beach, Fla.—Manager Bucky Harris hopes his Washington ball club will come to life at last in today's tilt with the Baltimore Orioles. Showing signs of weak hitting all spring, the Senators were blanked by Brooklyn in their last game. And Harris was in a high dudgeon, for the Senators this year are supposed to hit if nothing else.

WRESTLING LAST NIGHT

By The Associated Press

Buffalo, N. Y.—Steve (Crusher) Casey, 234, Ireland, and King Kong Cox, 240, Lodi, Calif., drew. Indianapolis—The Great Memphis, 183, Newark, N. J., defeated Frankie Hart, 180, Toronto (Hart unable to return for second fall).

WHO SAID LOU IS SLOWING UP?

Lou Gehrig, veteran New York Yankee first baseman, slides home with a score in Yank 8-2 victory over Fort Worth at Fort Worth. Catcher is Bob Schang.

French Dyers, Cairo, Catskill, Arlington Win Tournament Openers

In the opening round of the Hudson Valley Gold Medal basketball tournament held at the Y. M. C. A. last night only one local team managed to come through victorious. Besides the French Dye Works five winning, Catskill Howitzers, Cairo Essos and the Arlington All Stars won. Four more games are scheduled for tonight.

The Cleaners whipped a plucky Thomson's Laundry team by 34 to 24. Catskill beat Saugerties 28 to 20. Cairo outsmarted a strong West Point team 20 to 16. Arlington scored a triumph over Schippies five by 29 to 21.

Coming from behind on the spectacular work of Andy Murphy and Jess Shultis the French team overpowered Thomson's in the late sessions for a deserving win. In his usual outstanding style Murphy clicked on back-board flips while Shultis rammed in long arched fields. "Bub" Van Buren also chipped in with six markers. Chet Fox and Ernie Bartoff with 10 and 7 respectively paced the losers.

In the second brawl a fast-clicking team from Catskill outplayed Michael's Barber Shop entry in one of the best games on the bill. With Potts, Howard and Bill Hartman flashing good offensive form the Howitzers took the lead and held it until the final whistle. Don Wolven checked in eight points for the Saugerties club.

The big upset of the evening came in the third tussle when Cairo took a neat 20 to 16 decision from the West Point All Stars. Barry Holder of the Essos picked the wickets for eight points and carved himself plenty of laurels for his floor work. West Point was held scoreless in the third canto. With Murphy coming to life the West Pointers threatened in the final session but failed to overtake Cairo.

Another open affair took the spotlight in the finale when Arlington proved to be a serious contender for the championship. A fast-breaking and passing team, Arlington nullified all of the Schippies' threats to take a 29 to 21 victory. Melissac and Nick Angelo stood out for the winners while Tommy Madden and Jimmy Albany divided the work of the losers.

Four more closely contested battles are listed for tonight. In the opener Fuller Clermonts will tackle the Battery A five. At the 8 o'clock bell the Elston Sport Shop quintet will attempt to stop the Hyde Park Presidents. The Corliss Brothers of Poughkeepsie and the Newburgh du Ponts tangle at 9 o'clock. And the final attraction offers Kiskatom and the Sullivan County Eagles.

Outboard Motorboat Race Plans Now Call for Contest on May 14

Despite announcements to the contrary, the Albany to New York outboard motorboat race will be held on May 14 as originally planned, it was announced today by Joseph Huber, public relations agent for the Kingston Powerboat Association with headquarters at Fischer's Casino.

A letter from C. F. Chapman, president of the Middle Atlantic Outboard Association, to the Kingston Powerboat Association stated: "At a meeting of the Middle Atlantic Association held on March 28, it was voted to hold the Albany-New York race as originally scheduled on May 14."

Two weeks ago announcements were issued that the race would not be run this year on account of the presence of the navy fleet in the lower Hudson river, for the World's Fair.

Huber said that the only hitch at present is in designating the finish line, which may be at Dyckman street, at Englewood, N. J., or even as far up the river as Yonkers. Decision on this will be made at a meeting to be held this month.

It is the consensus of the Kingston Powerboat Association that local race enthusiasts will be glad of the news about plans to go on with the annual dash down the Hudson. Every year this city furnishes its quota of spectators along the banks of the river at the various points of vantage.

Spare Hockey Players Stay

Boston, April 5 (AP)—While thankful that all of his Boston Bruins escaped serious injury in the gruelling semi-final hockey playoffs with the New York Rangers, cautious Art Ross today refused to put too much trust in the hockey fates and ordered five of his farmhands, including a spare goalie, to remain on hand until the Stanley Cup series with the Toronto Maple Leafs is decided.

When the Bruins resumed practice yesterday all but Defenseman Jack Crawford were prepared for a workout. Crawford had his ailing left hip treated and Ross counts on using him in tomorrow's opener at the Boston Garden.

Reports from Toronto indicate the Leafs, also full strength, will not arrive until tomorrow morning. As a result they will not have a chance to try out the Garden surface before starting the four-out-of-seven game series for the battered trophy that is emblematic of the world's professional hockey championship.

The Baltz Pajama-makers, upset the apple cart last night by turning in a 25-23 victory over the Barmann Brewers, thus becoming champions of the second half of the National Division in the City Basketball League and qualifying for a play-off with Barmanns for division championship in the American Division when they overwhelmed the Boston Cleaners 30-19. In a preliminary attraction the Madden Aces lost out to the Elstons in the first of a three-game series for the championship of the Boys' Recreation League, 32-33, at the same time turning in one of the best games of the evening. All three contests were at the municipal auditorium.

Trailing 12-17 at the end of the third period, Baltz's spurred ahead to upset their arch rivals, the Brewers, by virtue of deuces by Melchior and Bruce in the last minutes of the contest. Bruce led the winners with six points; Zeek scored 10 for the losers.

In the Cleaner-Merchant contest, the last period saw the undoing of the Cleaners, with Schneider and Van Buren scoring all of the Merchants' 11 points in that quarter. Van Buren turned in the game's highest scoring with 13 points. Schneider followed with 12. TenBroeck with five was high for the Bostons.

The Madden Aces-Elston game was nip and tuck from start to finish. Both teams showed up well with accurate shooting and fine floor work. It was Williams' free throw that gave the victory to Elstons after Larkin had tied the game up 32-32. Albright was the Elstons' high scorer with 12 points. Tommy Fisher was the Aces' ace with 13.

Tomorrow's schedule: 7—Uptown Merchants vs. Elks. 8—Madden Aces vs. Elstons. 9—Baltz vs. Barmann.

Fair Warning
Newberry, S. C.—Thieves took all the hens—25 of them—from Lawrence Derrick's chickenhouse, but left the two roosters and this note:
"Get some pullets and start over again. We are coming back to see you!"

Slating Sentence
New York—Court attaches told Magistrate Richard E. McKiniry that Henry W. Armstrong, charged with illegal parking, had written the music for "Sweet Adeline" 36 years ago.
"Then sing it and I'll suspend sentence," the court ordered. The defendant listened intently, then suspended sentence as he had promised.
"But I ought to fine you for your singing," he remarked.

Where, Oh Where?
Alhambra, Calif.—John F. Schneider's lot sticks 14 feet over into Alhambra; the rest is in Los Angeles.
He asked the Alhambra city council to refund his dog license fee because he was paying fees to both cities.
The council voted the refund with the provision the dog "stay on the Los Angeles part of the property."

'Man in the Iron Mask'

The Island of St. Marguerite, near Cannes on the French Riviera, attracts many visitors. Here it was that during the reign of Louis XIV, in a rockbound monastery, rising out of the sea, one of the strangest mysteries of French history was lived out for 40 years by the "Man in the Iron Mask" whose tragic identity is unknown. Treated with royal honor, insofar as his physical care was concerned, his face hidden behind a fitted iron mask that was never lifted, this unknown man kept his lonely vigil of the sea until at last death set him free. Historians have never found the answer. Some have surmised that he was twin brother to the king... that he was Fouquet... that he was a royal betrayer... that he was a self-imposed penance... But, no one knows. And mystery lovers go to St. Marguerite to wander through the apartments of the strange figure and ponder on his fate.

Follow This Bread Diet Outline*

This sample Diet Plan gives about 1500 calories a day, the reducing allowance for a moderately active woman, whose ideal weight would be 130 lbs., but who is 10 to 20 lbs. overweight. For more extreme overweight, consult your doctor about reducing.

BREAKFAST
1 glass fruit juice
Small serving lean meat, fish or fowl
2 SLICES BREAD, with 1/2 square butter
Clear coffee with 1 tsp. sugar

LUNCH OR SUPPER
Moderate serving lean meat, fish, fowl or 2 eggs
Average serving 1 green vegetable
2 SLICES BREAD, with 1/2 square butter
Average serving fruit salad

DINNER
1/2 glass fruit or tomato juice
Generous serving lean meat, fish or fowl
Average serving 2 vegetables, one green
2 SLICES BREAD, with 1/2 square butter
Small serving simple dessert
Coffee or tea (clear) 1 tsp. sugar

*Make sure, of course, that your overweight is not caused by a condition that requires medical treatment.

When you reduce on the Bread Diet, you should feel splendidly energetic—not weak, tired and irritable.

For bread is a valuable source of necessary food energy, and helps to maintain nerve and muscle tissue. Scientific tests show that on the Bread Diet, you can enjoy 2 slices of bread with every meal—and lose weight! Try it!

James Fitzgerald Dies Suddenly

Hurley Avenue Resident Succumbs to Attack

James Fitzgerald, 75, of 75 Hurley avenue, died yesterday afternoon at his home. He succumbed to an attack which seized him suddenly, and died before the arrival of Dr. Emil Goodyear, who had been called. Coroner Norvin R. Lasher of Saugerties, who was called, said death was due to natural causes.

Mr. Fitzgerald had been employed for many years by B. Loughran & Co. He was the only surviving member of his family, his sister, Esther, having died a few days before last Thanksgiving and a brother, Joseph, died shortly over a year ago. Two other brothers, the Rev. Henry Fitzgerald and Francis Fitzgerald died some years ago.

Mr. Loughran was born in the Higginsville section of the city and lived there all his life. Several nieces and nephews survive him. He was a member of St. Joseph's Church and of the Holy Name Society of that church. The funeral will be held Friday morning at 9:30 o'clock from the St. Joseph's Church where at 10 o'clock blessing and absolution will be given. Because of Good Friday the funeral Mass will be deferred until a date to be announced later.

The body may be viewed at the Jensen and Deegan parlors at any time.

Flick Says Certain Records Are Missing

"The records of the city of Kingston along with those of the villages of Kingston and Rondout appear to be complete with the exception of the village of Kingston minute book for the years 1830-54," said Hugh M. Flick, state supervisor of public records, in submitting a written report of the investigation he had made recently of the city's records on file in the city hall.

The report was read at the monthly meeting of the common council on Tuesday evening, and was ordered filed.

Mr. Flick in his report writes: "A careful and systematic search still may locate the lost book. The citizens of Kingston should be asked to cooperate in the search."

The general condition of care and protection of public records of the city is approved, Mr. Flick states in his report. He also made several recommendations and said special pains should be taken to see that no wooden filing equipment is used in any of the vaults of the city. He found that the records easily were accessible.

Special Services to Be Held At Albany Avenue Church

During the week special services will be held at the Albany Avenue Baptist Church on Thursday and Friday evenings at 7:30 o'clock. On Thursday evening it will be a liturgical communion service preceded by a 15-minute organ recital by the organist, Mrs. Lester E. Decker, and a baritone solo by Mr. Brigham. There will be no sermon but more time will be given for meditation and prayer. The musical program will include these organ numbers:

Chorale—Wenn Wis in Hochsten
Noten Sein Bach
Lenten Prelude Loret
Prelude in C Minor Chopin
Offertory on a theme from Gottschalk Dunham Romance Debussy
Baritone solo by Mr. Brigham—
Communion Decker
The Good Friday service will include messages by the pastor, the Rev. Arthur S. Cole, on "Three Crosses," and following are the musical numbers:
Organ—Stabat Mater Dolorosa

Group to Arrange For Day at Fair

Kurdt, Mayor Heiselman and Allan Hanstein to See Officials

Mayor C. J. Heiselman, Albert Kurdt, manager of the Ulster County Farm Bureau, and Allan L. Hanstein, are in New York city today conferring with the officials of the World's Fair, which opens on April 30, to arrange for a Kingston-Ulster County Day at the fair.

Both the city and county had been invited to have a day set apart at the fair, but it was decided to ask if the two days could not be combined into one to be known as the Kingston Ulster County Day.

The mayor and Mr. Kurdt left this morning for New York City taking with them the Ulster County exhibits to be shown at the fair. They met Mr. Hanstein in New York.

At noon today the party were the guests of Attorney Rufus C. Van Aken of the law firm of Medina & Sheppick of 165 Broadway, who is a former Ulster county resident, at lunch in the National Republican Club.

Among the subjects the Kingston men planned to discuss with the fair officials was the feasibility of holding a big Ulster county dinner on the Fair Grounds on the evening of June 19, which would be attended by former Ulster county residents now living in New York city, as well as residents from the county who desired to attend. The dinner would climax the Kingston-Ulster County Day at the World's Fair.

On Easter Sunday there will be a special musical program at the morning service and baptism will be administered. On Sunday evening the Christian Endeavor Society will give an Easter pageant entitled, "The Open Gate," about 30 young people taking part. An Easter memorial program will be distributed at the morning service.

What Legislature Is Doing Today

Albany, April 5 (AP)—New York's legislators may resume work next Monday night rather than ever from a solution of budgetary and taxation problems they hoped would be effected during a 10-day recess.

When the Legislature recessed last Friday for Easter week, Republican leaders were confident a sales tax eventually would be enacted to balance Democratic Governor Lehman's record $415,032,122 budget. Now they are not so sure.

During the first four days away from Albany, "home-town" reaction to the sales tax and other proposed money-raising measures brought statements from five Republican senators. All said they would vote against a sales tax, cutting to 22—four less votes than necessary to approve legislation—possible party support for the plan.

While Republican sponsors of the sales tax hinted Democratic support and refused to abandon hope for its adoption, they turned to "three or four" new budget-reducing plans just in case.

The new plans were not divulged although one source indicated they "probably would entail salary reductions of state and civil service employees" as well as cuts in proposed departmental appropriations.

Later to join the Republican senators anti-sales tax block is Senator Gilbert T. Seelye of Saratoga county. He predicted "there will be no sales tax and the budget is going to be cut." Earlier announced opponents are Senators Roy Page, Binghamton; C. Tracey Stagg, Ithaca; Thomas C. Desmond, Newburgh, and Arthur Wicks, Kingston.

As Republicans considered budget reduction, the state budget emergency committee, claiming to represent taxpayers of 58 counties, warned against "compromises or half-baked economy."

Declains Cosmetics

Spokane, Wash., April 5 (AP)—Dorothy Canfield Fisher termed cosmetics "one of the worst and most vulgar forms of triviality" today. The Arlington, Vt., author, told the annual Inland Empire Education Association convention "this exaggerated, decadent, late Roman mania for licking up and lacquering our bodily surfaces has become a major exploitation of American women."

Some of the problems in the production of iceberg lettuce in New York are explained in the new Cornell bulletin P-714. For a free copy, write to the New York State College of Agriculture at Ithaca, New York.

The South's pig crop increased from approximately 13,000,000 head in 1929 to 16,000,000 in 1938.

Oil heat at surprisingly low cost

wherever this "skinflint" burner is installed

That's what home owners say about the Model P Petro & Nokol Oil Burner. For no other burner has "Tubular Atomization" that produces lazy, quiet, more efficient soft flame combustion, resulting in greater heat release in the burning of the fuel.

Built for small home heating plants, this Petro & Nokol knows just how to squeeze every drop of fuel oil heat-dry. It's a "chiseler" that trims fuel oil bills.

See it. Priced today at bedrock, even though costs are rising. Install now—start paying next fall.

Sign-Up Started On Farm Program

Marked Interest Is Shown By County Farmers

The sign-up for the 1939 Agricultural Conservation Program is well under way, it was announced today. Ulster county farmers are showing a great deal of interest in the program this year and several hundred have already signed up, including quite a few who have never been in the program before, it was stated.

Any farmer in Ulster county is eligible to participate in the program. Any one interested can sign up by attending one of the meeting places listed below. Every farmer who plans to sign up is urged to appear at one of the places listed, as this will greatly reduce county expenses. It is anticipated that work sheets will be made out only at scheduled meeting places this year.

Easter Paper Catches Fire In Store on Broadway

Colored paper used for decorating Easter baskets of candy caught fire at 8:50 o'clock Tuesday evening in the store at 108 Broadway, owned by Mrs. Adele Bregman and conducted by her daughters, Miss Anna Bregman, who was in the store at the time, had the presence of mind to douse the fire with several pails of water, and the fire was out when the fire department arrived in response to an alarm from Box 42. The damage was slight. The colored paper was on one of the shelves in the store.

Trout Is Plentiful

Albany, N. Y., April 5 (UPI)—Note to anglers: There are still plenty of trout in New York state waters. The state conservation department reached that conclusion today after scanning meager reports catches since the season opened Saturday amid rain, snow and wind. The official conclusion: "The fishermen, rather than the fish, were hooked."

Know Right Ways To Train Your Dog

Win Dog's Confidence

Two little puppies—eager to grow up to be smart, well-behaved dogs! And so they will when properly trained.

It's not hard to make a puppy understand if you win his confidence during puppyhood. A good rule is not to punish him with the hand that feeds him. When necessary speak sharply to him or tap him lightly with a folded newspaper.

Time to begin your puppy's "grown-up" schooling when he's about nine months old.

Easy then to teach such clever tricks as "Shake Hands!" When he's in a sitting position press your hand against the right side of his head. His right paw will naturally rise, then you quickly grab it and say "Shake Hands!" He'll soon get the idea.

Training goes more quickly, is more fun for you and doggy when he's in tiptop form. To have an alert healthy dog, know rules of diet, be able to recognize first signs of illness, especially diarrhoea, housebreaking, grooming—simple directions for teaching your dog jolly tricks.

Our 32-page booklet tells you how to analyze symptoms and treat illnesses. Gives valuable information on feeding, training, housebreaking, grooming—simple directions for teaching your dog jolly tricks.

Send 10c in coin for your copy of HOW TO CHOOSE AND CARE FOR YOUR DOG to Kingston Daily Freeman, Home Service, 633 Sixth Ave., New York, N. Y. Be sure to write plainly your NAME, ADDRESS, and the NAME of booklet.

Four Model Rooms

presenting furniture ensembles and home decorating ideas

on display at HARDENBERGH'S

To Ulster County home-makers we are happy to announce that Model Rooms have been permanently set up in our store for the continuous showing of home furnishings. Each month one will be featured as the "Room-of-the-month," with furnishings appropriate to the season.

The rooms will be open for visits at any time during store hours. The April Room-of-the-month is a living room.

The installation of these Four Model Rooms is another step in modern merchandising progress. During the last year we have opened boarded-up windows to let in daylight, re-arranged floor spacing to accommodate display racks, and added a new department. The purpose has been to give our all-on-one-floor store greater capacity for a particular type of service.

We think the space devoted to our Model Rooms is space well spent. Ulster County is an unusual community of homes. They range from grand mansions to artists' humble studios, and from Colonial stone houses to contemporary dwellings. The personalities and tastes of the homeowners are as varied as the architecture.

That individuality we have tried to meet with a "personalized" home furnishings store. We have needed to do more than just sell furniture. We have needed to help create beautifully furnished homes after the ideals of their owners.

..... Thus we have found our niche in the community.

The Model Rooms have been set up so that we may demonstrate the many ways of decorating a window... experiment with lighting... show a piece of furniture as part of an ensemble... develop color schemes... present new ideas visually.

You are invited to visit the Model Rooms at your convenience.

Doctors' Group Holds Meeting

Eight From Ulster County Present at Session

The combined meeting of the New York, Westchester and Mid-Hudson Chapters of The National Gastroenterological Society was held at the Nelson House in Poughkeepsie on Tuesday evening and Kingston and Ulster county were represented at the meeting by eight physicians, seven from this city and one from Highland.

The Mid-Hudson Chapter of the society is composed of members from Newburgh, Poughkeepsie and Kingston, and acted as hosts to the New York and Westchester Chapters.

Dr. Fred H. Voss, F.A.C.P., of this city, who is a Fellow and president of the Mid-Hudson Chapter, presided and introduced the speakers of the evening. Dr. Robert F. Moseley is secretary of the chapter.

Scientific papers were presented by Dr. Anthony Bassler, Dr. F. M. Johnson, Dr. Paul Shirik and Dr. Roy Upham.

Dr. Bassler's paper was on Gall Tract Disease, diagnosis and therapy.

Dr. Johnson spoke on "Gastric Ulcer, newer therapeutic measures."

Dr. Shirik's paper was on "Ptois and Insulin," and Dr. Upham spoke on "Gastritis, interpretation and treatment."

Following the presentation of the papers there was a general discussion of the subjects presented.

Kingston was represented at the meeting by Drs. Voss, Jacobson, LeFave, Nicholas, Ilugel, Bush, Goodyear, and the county by Dr. Gonzalez of Highland.

Plane Carrier Launched
Barrow, in - F. N. S. England, April 5 (AP)—The M. S. Illustrious, 23,000 tons, the largest aircraft carrier ever built for the British navy, was launched today. The Illustrious, the first of five sister ships, was laid down in 1937.

Explosion Kills Six
Oslo, April 5 (AP)—An explosion aboard the Norwegian motorship Katy, 6,826 tons, killed six workmen today and injured several others, including wives of workers visiting the ship. The Katy had been undergoing repairs.

Financial and Commercial

New York, April 5 (AP)—Wall Street was on the alert today for hints of a settlement between Germany and Poland and the stock market strained for a rally after its heavy fall in the preceding session.

Market rumors Poland and Germany had agreed on a way out of the Danzig question touched off a wave of buying in the early afternoon. Some stocks ran up more than a point. The rally quickly subsided, however, after financial tickers carried a denial of the rumors from London. Near the final hour the market drifted in listless trade.

Dealings shrank greatly as the selling diminished, setting a pace of about 900,000 shares for the full session.

Pointing up were U. S. Steel, Bethlehem, Douglas, Sperry, Cerrito, North American, Southern Railway, Standard Oil of New Jersey and Air Reduction.

A shade off most of the time were Sears Roebuck, Chrysler, U. S. Rubber and du Pont.

Bonds and commodities steadied with stocks.

Carb stocks also were mixed in a narrow market. Minor gains in American Cyanamid "B", Creole and Lockheed at one time were offset by losses in Gulf Oil, Aluminum of America and Newmont.

Report of the condition of the Chase National Bank as of March 31 shows total deposits of $2,591,000,000, which ranks it as the largest commercial bank in the world. Its nearest competitor is the Midland Bank, Ltd., of London, which had average total deposits in February of $2,213,000,000.

Business news yesterday included earnings estimates for the first quarter which confirmed the generally improved condition of industrial operations in the first quarter as compared with the same period last year.

Aircraft manufacturers are continuing to step up operations which will probably reach the highest level in the history of the industry in the last half of the year. Production in the present quarter may exceed the record made in the second quarter of 1938. With heavy foreign ordering earnings are improving.

First quarter net of the chemical industry will be well above 25 to 30 per cent ahead. Outlook for the second quarter is in doubt, due to the slowing down in textile and automobile industries, two largest consumers of chemicals.

Carloadings for last week are estimated to have registered a less than seasonal decline, but will probably be off this week, due to the termination of soft coal mining, 350,000 miners being idle pending negotiations for a new contract.

Raybestos-Manhattan had net profit of $1,221,663, or $2.83 a share, vs. net in 1937 of $861,527, or 40 c a share.

Rock Island showed net loss in 1938 of $11,391,620. Loss year before was $9,556,880.

American Can declared regular quarterly dividend of $1 on common. Cerrito de Pasco Copper voted $1, same as in previous quarters.

Finds Cause of Skill in Sports

It's the Animal in People, Psychology Professor Discovers.

CLEVELAND. — A psychologist trying to find out how people learn skill in sports, music and trades, reports that it's the animal in them.

Roland C. Travis, associate professor of psychology at Western Reserve university, used animals that are blind, yet, strangely, can see to learn that skill develops when the old "animal" part of the brain is put to work with the new "intellectual" part.

"The old brain," he explained, "is that which we have in common with our animal ancestors. On this part, impressions of the long period of evolution are believed to have been recorded."

"The new part is the thinking brain, developed most thoroughly in man."

It seems that many of man's impulses, which have to be controlled or inhibited, come from the old brain.

Visual Centers Removed.

Professor Travis took some animals and removed the visual centers of the "new" part of their brain. This operation, he found, made them flounder about, bumping into walls and furniture.

"But when a light was swung back and forth in front of their faces the animals could follow it with their eyes," he said. "Although blind as far as their conscious minds were concerned, they were seeing with their old brain, the sub-cortical region, which serves very primitive functions to find their way about."

Professor Travis then found that human beings have both conscious and unconscious seeing facilities.

"If the eyes followed a swinging light," he said, "they moved at a rate of 60 degrees a second. The motion from left to right always was smooth. The motion is involuntary, and is governed by the old brain."

He found that when a person moved his eyes voluntarily across the page of a book or some other field of vision, the eyes moved more smoothly—300 to 500 degrees a second. No matter how hard the subject tried, he could not move his eyes in a smooth, unbroken motion. They always jerked.

Hands Used in Tests.

"The hands in their first crude efforts at golf or typing," Professor Travis learned, "are like the eyes in their voluntary motions."

He demonstrated his conclusion by rigging up a device he calls the "pursuit oscillator," which charts the hand's course as it tries to follow a haphazardly moving button with a pointer. It also charts the course of the eyes as they follow the button.

"The motion of the eyes, being involuntary," he said, "follows the button perfectly, without any practice. But it is very difficult for the hand to follow the button and makes many false attempts, like the first attempts at golfing, typing, or playing a fiddle."

On experiments with 100 students, Professor Travis found that the hand needed six trials before it operated as perfectly as the eyes. Then, he concluded, there was complete co-operation between the old and new brains.

Town Retains Land Deed

OF 1650 With Indians

FARMINGTON, CONN.—One of the few land deeds executed between Indians and white men in America is still preserved in Farmington town hall here, showing actual signature inscriptions of Tuxis Indian chiefs.

The date of the document is April 8, 1650, and some of the names of the white men who signed it still are prominent in community life of Farmington, New Britain, and other neighboring towns included in the trade, although 300 years ago the territory was nothing but wilderness.

Other documents executed between the Indians and settlers contain many signatures of Indian witnesses—symbols of lesser chiefs and squaws, many of them efforts at drawing of actual objects, others merely scratches.

STRANGLER ON BREAK NECK MOUNTAIN

Three Men Held for Crawford Burglary

Leslie Jarvis, 27, Leonard Williams, 18, both of Pine Bush, and Clifford Howe, 22, of Walden, were committed to the Ulster county jail last night after arraignment before Justice Seth C. Lippincott on charges of burglary in the third degree. They are being held for appearance before the grand jury.

The three men arrested by Corporal Norman Baker and Trooper John Metzger of the B.C.J., following an investigation of the robbing of a cottage owned by Patrick O'Neil of Crawford. The men are charged with breaking into the cottage and taking a bag of feed and a brush hook, also of stripping the piping from a tractor which stood near the cottage.

A Jersey cow stolen at Hale Center, Conn., returned two days later dragging a brand new rope to its owner.

National Basketball Champions Play Colonials Tonight

Sedranites Will Try to Uphold Supremacy of Other Local Teams—Rens Here With Flashy Youngsters

This is the night for that basketball classic at the municipal auditorium to prove two things—whether the Colonials can keep up the record of their predecessors as conquerors of the Renaissance on the Broadway boards, and whether local interest warrants plans to bring Barney Sedran's team back next season.

When Frank Morgenweck, bossed professional basketball at the auditorium, his cagers used to take the measure of the Rens, despite great efforts on the part of the famous colored team to win. Sedran's cagers distinguished themselves as superior to any other band of players to represent Kingston in the American League by winning the championship this season, and their chances should be at least as good as Morgie's old club.

Colored Flash

ZACK CLAYTON

"I think we can uphold the reputation of Kingston when we clash with the Rens," said Manager Sedran, "but it must be remembered that the great colored team is better this year than ever, with those additional youngsters Boss Douglas added to his roster to speed up the club." They are Clayton, Gates and Bell.

The Rens recently won the national professional basketball championship in Chicago, where the Colonials were eliminated in the quarter-finals. Despite the failure of his Green and White cagers to click out west, and their slump in the American League president's cup playoffs, Sedran has hopes of seeing them win tonight.

The other angle in tonight's game involves the return of the Colonials to the auditorium next year to represent Kingston in the American League. Yesterday, a local committee backing the Sedranites said that if response was heavy enough to the Colonials' Rens booking efforts would be made to keep Kate Smith's Celtics here for the 1939-40 season. Patronage fell off to an alarming extent during the playoff games at the Broadway court, but the consensus is that the fans stayed away on account of advanced prices. Tonight the admission and reserved seat charges will be the same as during the regular season with no advances.

As far as the game is concerned, everybody agrees that it will be nothing short of lightning-like action with the two aggregations of champions battling hard to top the laurels.

Hope for Dodgers In "Red" Evans

By HUGH S. FULLERTON, JR.

New York, April 5 (AP)—The latest chunk of dynamite to get mixed up in the generally explosive relations between the Brooklyn Dodgers and New York Giants is Russell "Red" Evans, a 30-year-old righthander who acts like a walking advertisement for his home town—Energy, Illinois.

If Evans goes as well during the regular season as he has this spring, Secretary Eddie Brannick of the Giants probably will begin ducking every time he sees a telegraph messenger for fear it's another ribbing wire, sent collect, from his enemy John McDonald of Brooklyn.

For Evans, who did a great job of hurling for New Orleans last summer, became Brooklyn property for the exceedingly low price of $7,500, because of a Giant boner. Bill Terry purchased him from the Pelicans for about $5,000 more than that last fall and sent him to the Giants' No. 1 farm at Jersey City. But he neglected to put Evans on the New York reserve list, thus leaving him eligible for the draft. Last winter the Dodgers grabbed him up by the draft route, disregarding some not especially subdued murmurs of "robbery" and "Brooklyn ethics."

Now if Red can knock off the Giants a few times next summer, everything will be practically perfect from the Flatbush viewpoint. And so far there's no indication that he can't do it. He has pitched 17 innings in the grapefruit league and 16 of them have been scoreless. He gave the Reds three runs in one inning of his second game. On Monday he blanked Washington for seven innings with six hits.

Last year he won 21 games and lost 14 with the weak New Orleans club and compiled an earned average of 2.83. That won him the nomination as the Southern Association's most valuable player.

TRAINING CAMP BRIEFS

By The Associated Press

Baton Rouge, La.—Johnny Wittig, the young hurler from Baltimore, must learn to be a little more deceitful if he is to stick with the New York Giants. Wittig has plenty of "stuff" and has no difficulty finding the center of the plate, but he does it too often and shows by his actions what he's going to throw. More concealment and cutting of the corners are Manager Bill Terry's prescription.

Lakeland, Fla.—Al Todd, Brooklyn's recently acquired catcher who has been burned up by the criticism he received in connection with the Pirates' collapse last fall, wants Pie Traynor to know that he has been given Babe Phelps' clean-up position in the Dodger batting order. "Wait until Traynor hears about this," he shouted when he was told, and he hopes Pie didn't miss the news of yesterday's two homers. With Paul (no longer Dizzy) Trout and Tommy Bridges hurling for Detroit, the Dodgers and Tigers played their last exhibition game here today before heading north.

Dallas, Tex.—Outfielder Tommy Henrich, who has been filling in for Lou Gehrig at first for the Yankees, is hoping Lou has a good year. "I'd rather play the outfield," he explains. "I think I can hold my own out there, but I don't kid myself about being a finished first baseman. The position is new to me."

Daytona Beach, Fla.—Manager Bucky Harris hopes his Washington ball club will come to life at bat in today's tilt with the Baltimore Orioles. Showing signs of weak hitting all spring, the Senators were blanked by Brooklyn in their last game. And Harris was in a high dudgeon, for the Senators this year are supposed to hit if nothing else.

WRESTLING LAST NIGHT

By The Associated Press

Buffalo, N. Y.—Steve (Crusher) Casey, 234, Ireland, and King Kong Cox, 240, Lodi, Calif., drew to Indianapolis—The Great Memphis, 183, Newark, N. J., defeated Frankie Hart, 180, Toronto (Hart unable to return for second fall).

Lou Gehrig, veteran New York Yankee first baseman, slides home with a score in Yank 8-2 victory over Fort Worth at Fort Worth. Catcher is Bob Schang.

French Dyers, Cairo, Catskill, Arlington Win Tournament Openers

In the opening round of the Hudson Valley Gold Medal baseball tournament held at the Y. M. C. A. last night only one local team managed to come through victorious. Besides the French Dye Works five winning, Catskill Howitzers, Cairo Essos and the Arlington All Stars won. Four more games are scheduled for tonight.

The Cleaners whipped a plucky Thomson's Laundry team by 34 to 24. Catskill beat Saugerties 28 to 20. Cairo outscored a strong West Point team 20 to 15. Arlington scored a triumph over Schippies five by 29 to 21.

Coming from behind on the spectacular work of Andy Murphy and Jess Shultis the French team overpowered Thomson's in the late sessions for a deserving win. In his usual outstanding style Murphy clicked on back-board in long, arched fields. "Bub" Van Buren also clipped in with six markers. Chet Fox and Ernie Bartroff with 10 and 7 respectively paced the losers.

In the second brawl a fast-climbing team from Catskill outplayed Michael's Barber Shop entry in one of the best games on the bill. With Potts, Howard and Bill Hartman flashing good offensive form the Howitzers took the lead and held it until the final whistle. Don Wolven chucked in eight points for the Saugerties club.

The big upset of the evening came in the third tussle when Cairo took a neat 20 to 16 decision from the West Point All Stars. Barry Holder of the Essos picked the wicket for eight points and carved himself plenty of points for his floor work. West Point was held scoreless in the third game. With Murphy coming to life the West Pointers threatened in the final session but failed to overtake Cairo.

Another open affair took the spotlight in the finale when Arlington proved to be a serious contender for the championship. A fast-breaking and passing team, Arlington nullified all of the Schippies' threats to take a 29 to 21 victory. Melissac and Nick Angelo stood out for the winners while Tommy Madden and Jimmy Albany divided the work of the losers.

Tonight's Game: Four more closely contested battles are listed for tonight. In the opener Fuller Clemmons will tackle the Battery A five. At the 8 o'clock bell the Elston Sport Shop quintet will attempt to stop the Hyde Park Presidents. The Corliss Brothers of Poughkeepsie and the Newburgh du Ponts tangle at 9 o'clock. And the final attraction offers Kiskatom and the Sullivan County Eagles.

Outboard Motorboat Race Plans Now Call for Contest on May 14

Despite announcements to the contrary, the Albany to New York outboard motorboat race will be held on May 14 as originally planned. It was announced today by Joseph Huber, public relations agent for the Kingston Powerboat Association with headquarters at Fischer's Casino.

A letter from C. F. Chapman, president of the Middle Atlantic Outboard Association, to the Kingston Powerboat Association stated: "At a meeting of the Middle Atlantic Association held on March 28, it was voted to hold the Albany-New York race as originally scheduled on May 14." Two weeks ago announcements were issued that the race would not be run this year on account of the presence of the navy fleet in the lower Hudson river, for the World's Fair.

Huber said that the only hitch at present is in designating the finish line, which may be at Dyckman street, at Englewood, N. J., or even as far up the river as Yorkers. Decision on this will be made at a meeting to be held this month.

It is the consensus of the Kingston Powerboat Association that local race enthusiasts will be glad of the news about plans to go on with the annual dash down the Hudson. Every year this city furnishes its quota of spectators along the banks of the river at the various points of vantage.

Mexican Wins Billard Title

Mexican, April 5 (AP)—The new world's champion of three cushion billiards is 38-year-old Joe Chamaco, native of Mexico who now lives in New York.

Chamaco clinched the title yesterday with a double victory over Frank Scoville of Buffalo, N. Y. The Mexican, victor of 50 of 66 matches, has six more to play before the tournament ends April 14, but he can lose all of them and still hold his top position. Jay Bozeman of Chicago likewise has clinched second place with 46 wins and 24 losses.

Tournament prize money will amount to $10,000, of which the winner will receive about $2,500. Chamaco also set a new world's record for tournament play with a high run of 18 points.

Causes of "Willie-the-Wisp" Ignis fatuus is the name applied to the pale flame, also called will-o'-the-wisp and jack-o'-lantern, sometimes seen flickering over marshy ground and, it is said, over churchyards. No entirely satisfactory explanation of the phenomenon has been advanced, but it is generally believed that the effect is due to the spontaneous ignition of gases (especially methane or marsh gas, CH₄) produced by the disintegration of dead plant and, possibly, animal matter.

Spare Hockey Players Stay

Boston, April 5 (AP)—While thankful that all of his Boston Bruins escaped serious injury in the gruelling semi-final hockey playoffs with the New York Rangers, cautious Art Ross today refused to put too much trust in the hockey fates and ordered five of his farmhands, including a spare goalie, to remain on hand until the Stanley Cup series with the Toronto Maple Leafs is decided.

When the Bruins resumed practice yesterday all but defenseman Jack Crawford were prepared for a workout. Crawford had his ailing left hip treated and Ross counts on using him in tomorrow's opener at the Boston Garden.

Reports from Toronto indicate the Leafs, also full strength, will not arrive until tomorrow morning. As a result they will not have a chance to try out the Garden surface before starting the four-out-of-seven game series for the battered trophy that is emblematic of the world's professional hockey championship.

James Fitzgerald, 75, of 75 Hurley avenue, died yesterday afternoon at his home. He succumbed to an attack which seized him suddenly, and died before the arrival of Dr. Paul Goodyear, who had been called. Coroner Norvin R. Lasher of Saugerties, who was called, said death was due to natural causes.

Mr. Fitzgerald had been employed for many years by B. Loughran & Co. He was the only surviving member of his family, his sister, Esther, having died a few days before last Thanksgiving and a brother, Joseph, died shortly over a year ago. Two other brothers, the Rev. Henry Fitzgerald and Francis Fitzgerald died some years ago.

Mr. Loughran was born in the Hugginsville section of the city and lived there all his life. Several nieces and nephews survive him. He was a member of St. Joseph's Church and of the Holy Name Society of that church.

The funeral will be held Friday morning at 9:30 o'clock from the Jensen and Deegan parlors at 15 Downs street, and then from St. Joseph's Church where at 10 o'clock blessing and absolution will be given. Because of Good Friday the funeral Mass will be deferred until a date to be announced later.

The body may be viewed at the Jensen and Deegan parlors at any time.

"The records of the city of Kingston along with those of the villages of Kingston and Rondout appear to be complete with the exception of the village of Kingston minute book for the years 1820-51," said Hugh M. Flick, state supervisor of public records, in submitting a written report of the investigation he had made recently of the city's records on file in the city hall.

The report was read at the monthly meeting of the common council on Tuesday evening, and was ordered filed.

Mr. Flick in his report writes: "A careful and systematic search still may locate the lost book. The citizens of Kingston should be asked to cooperate in the search."
The general condition of care and protection of public records of the city is approved, Mr. Flick states in his report. He also made several recommendations and said special pains should be taken to see that no wooden filing equipment is used in any of the vaults of the city. He found that the records easily were accessible.Special Services to Be Held At Albany Avenue Church

Both the city and county had been invited to have a day set apart at the fair, but it was decided to ask if the two days could not be combined into one to be known as the Kingston Ulster County Day.

At noon today the party were the guests of Attorney Rufus C. Van Aken of the law firm of Medina & Sherpick of 165 Broadway, who is a former Ulster county resident, at lunch in the National Republican Club.

Among the subjects the Kingston men planned to discuss with the fair officials was the feasibility of holding a big Ulster county dinner on the Fair Grounds on the evening of June 19, which would be attended by former Ulster county residents now living in New York city, as well as residents from the county who desired to attend. The dinner would climax the Kingston-Ulster County Day at the World's Fair.

What Legislature Is Doing Today

Albany, April 5 (AP)—New York's legislators may resume work next Monday night farther than ever from a solution of budgetary and taxation problems they hoped would be effected during a 10-day recess.

When the Legislature recessed last Friday for Easter week, Republican leaders were confident a sales tax eventually would be enacted to balance Democratic Governor Lehman's record $415,032,122 budget. Now they are not so sure.

During the first four days away from Albany, "home-town" reaction to the sales tax and other proposed money-raising measures brought statements from five Republican senators. All said they would vote against a sales tax, cutting to 22—four less votes than necessary to approve legislation—possible party support for the plan.

While Republican sponsors of the sales tax hinted Democratic support and refused to abandon hope for its adoption, they turned to "three or four" new budget-reducing plans just in case.

Later to join the Republican senators anti-sales tax block is Senator Gilbert P. Seelye of Saratoga county. He predicted "there will be no sales tax and the budget is going to be cut." Earlier announced opponents are Senators Roy Page, Binghamton; C. Tracey Stagg, Ithaca; Thomas C. Desmond, Newburgh, and Arthur Wicks, Kingston.

As Republicans considered budget reduction, the state budget emergency committee, claiming to represent taxpayers of 58 counties, warned against "compromises or half-baked economy."

Declains Cosmetics

Spokane, Wash., April 5 (AP)—Dorothy Canfield Fisher termed cosmetics "one of the worst and most vulgar forms of triviality" today. The Arlington, Va., author, told the annual Inland Empire Education Association convention "this exaggerated, decadent, late Roman mania for licking up and lacquering our bodily surfaces has become a major exploitation of American women."

Flip a switch
and your week's wash done!BENDIX HOME LAUNDRY washes... rinses... damp-dries... automatically

THIS IS ALL YOU DO...

1. Put dry, soiled clothes into dry cylinder and shut the door.
2. Set the automatic time and water controls... add soap and bluing.
3. Take out clean, sweet clothes... damp-dry and ready for the line.

THE SUCCESSOR TO THE WASHING MACHINE

Washday is different when you own a Bendix. In place of the messy jobs that kept you prisoned in a steamy basement, Bendix does all the work automatically... without attention from you. With Bendix you merely put in the clothes and flip a switch. Bendix does the rest and shuts off automatically. You are free to shop, work or play.
